A close-up photograph of a young child with short, curly blonde hair and blue eyes. The child is wearing a blue short-sleeved shirt and is holding a large bouquet of bright yellow marigold flowers in front of their chest. The child is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile. The background is a soft, out-of-focus green, suggesting an outdoor garden setting.

IPI/Skyscraper introduces our One Step construction loan. Great rates. Zero points. Single closing.

At IPI Skyscraper, we understand just how difficult it can be to buy land and to build your dream house.

Typically, you'd start with a short-term land loan, then go to a construction loan and finally an "end loan" or conventional mortgage. And typically, you'd pay points or fees every step of the way. Not to mention the aggravation of separate closings.

Not anymore. IPI is proud to announce our One Step construction loan. It's the only zero-point, single-closing land/construction/end loan available that is underwritten entirely on site in our Main Street, Bridgehampton office. This comprehensive program offers you a single interest rate for all three phases of your project, from beginning to end. And most important, IPI locks in your interest rate—in advance, at no additional cost—for 12 months, not for 60 days like other brokers or banks.

We can offer innovative programs like our One Step construction loan because we've consolidated our loan officers, processors, underwriters and closers under one roof. Our experienced mortgage professionals represent more than 100 preferred lenders, so we can find the best possible program at the best possible price for you. And because IPI is the largest mortgage broker in the Northeast, you get the best of two worlds: New York big and Hamptons local.

At IPI Skyscraper, we hammer out all the details of our One Step construction loans up front — so you don't get hammered by unnecessary fees.

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major department stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also known as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

The Catskills Are IN!

Or Maybe It's Bedford, Or Cape May, Or New Hope Or Woodstock Or Nantucket

By Dan Rattiner

Every year about this time the media people start talking about some other place that's better than the Hamptons. For instance, there was the year that Bedford was touted as the up and coming replacement for the Hamptons. That year, once again, I received a phone call from London from a journalist friend there, wanting to know if the latest news was true. Had Bedford really felled the Hamptons?

The year before that she was calling about Cape May and the year before that, New Hope, Pennsylvania. I told her what I thought which was that the Hamptons was still standing and I subsequently got myself quoted in the London Times along with a whole lot of other people saying this or that. Her name is McCee. I haven't yet heard from her this year.

Last year's challenger from whom there has not been a peep this year, was the "Hudson Valley." I remember an article last year, written about the place by Jared Paul Stern. Stern writes the Night Crawler column for the New York Post. "Hamptons? Ha! Hudson Valley!!" was the headline.

Stern argued that he was sick and tired of all the celebrities who had invaded the Hamptons and had been clogging all the street corners. He was especially concerned about the riff-raff. "Truthfully, with all the riff-raff clogging all the thoroughfares out that way, summering in Hoboken holds more appeal. But I'm not about to do that."

On the other hand, he pointed out there were

We locals call it the "lock the barn door, now that I'm here" theory. "After me, comes only the riff-raff." In other words, he sees the celebrities living peacefully and quietly, he moves in, and then after him there comes only riff-raff.

It's unbelievable thinking people don't understand what's wrong with this.

Well, who knows? Maybe this year Ms. McCee will make her annual call from London about Greenwich, Connecticut. Lots going on in Greenwich, Connecticut, or about the Catskills. The Catskills are being re-born. There's a big Indian-owned gambling casino coming. Yippee.

I actually saved a gossip item written by Liz Smith last summer, wedged in between an item about Elizabeth Taylor and another about Arthur Miller and Marilyn Monroe's personal belongings. There were four paragraphs about why she doesn't come out to the Hamptons anymore.

"I bow to no one in my adoration of the Hamptons, of Long Island," she wrote. "I lived there so happily in the '50s through the '70s and even some of the '80s, but reading about the Hamptons of today in plenty of celebrities living in the Hudson Valley. There was Willem DeFoe and Diane Keaton who lived right down the street from him, there was Harvey Keitel who has a big black Mercedes and there was Donovan Leitch and Kirsty Hume.

The problem for certain people is that until they get out there they think the place is paved with gold and once they get there, that should be it.

Billy Joel, who sold his house in the Hamptons to Jerry Seinfeld, was interviewed last Sunday by the New York Post. He's house hunting along the North Shore, is dating News 12 newscaster Trish Bergin and had this to say about the Hamptons. "I like it, but it's more and more become a resort area. It used to be a place for farmers and fishermen and local people but little by little the traditional community is pretty much moving away." Joel still has a boat designing and building business on Shelter Island and will soon be releasing his Madison Square Garden Millennium Concert album which he says will be his last Rock and Roll offering. He plans to concentrate on writing classical music.

Well known labor negotiator and East Hampton resident Ted Kheel has opened a web site, <http://www.bansoftmoney.org> which consists of an open letter to Mayor Giuliani and Hillary Clinton encouraging them to conclude the talks on banning soft money that began last January. You can enter your name as a signee to an open letter. The site will disappear once soft money is banned.

It's the battle of the super television Hamptonites; Regis Philbin who wants to be a millionaire to compete directly with Don Hewitt's 60 Minutes. Watch the ratings.

David Mahoney of Bridgehampton passed away May 1. He was the CEO of Norton Simon, Inc. and was a philanthropic activist supporting brain research. He was seventy-six; there will be a mass in his memory at 11 a.m. at St. Edwards Church in Palm Beach May 5. There will also be a memorial service in New York City in mid-May.

Sean Puffy Combs, who faces possible fifteen years in jail if convicted of having an illegal gun at the Club New York shooting on December 27, is shooting a scene, (no guns), for his movie Made at Tavern on the Green. He plays a flashy ganglord.

The ribbon was cut May 1, for the Pinewood West Sound Stage at LTV in East Hampton by Alec Baldwin who will direct his first film there, The Devil and Daniel Webster beginning next month.

Hamptonite Ahmet Ertgun was at Elaine's Saturday evening helping Richard Perry celebrate his high school reunion. Ertgun who was the founder of Atlantic Records and is a recording industry legend, usually hires performers but at this party got up and, along with Perry, sang "Sunday Kind of Love." Sign that man.

David Rose who has a house in East Hampton, was recently asked to speak about race relations in America at the Start of the New Century at a Yale Faculty Forum.

New York Magazine and the New York Observer, I thank my lucky stars that I no longer go there except as a brief visitor. Were I still a property owner I might be tempted to lay about me with the jawbone of an ass. Considering the descriptions of the infighting, overtourism, overbuilding, destruction of the potato fields and the miasma of gossip reporting that hangs like a smog over everything on the Eastern Shore... Recently a magazine asked me to name my favorite place on earth, I once would have said the Hamptons..."

You know the next sentence.

I am an admirer of Liz Smith's kind of gossip column writing, because she almost always kind about who she writes about. So to tell you the truth, I was kind of sad to read what she wrote. I don't know where she's going this summer, she didn't say, maybe that's the idea but she is a gossip column writer and I think it's fair to say that in the '50s, '60s, '70s and early '80s she must have been coming out here to get away from her vocation only to discover that a lot of it actually moved out here in the late '80s and '90s, so it wasn't a vacation anymore.

On another level, I've been noticing, and perhaps you have too, that when I see photographs taken of me, I'm always younger than I am now. Liz Smith, in the Hamptons in the '50s through the '80s could probably swim farther, dance longer, laugh louder and stay up a whole lot later than she does now. That sort of stuff's got to be factored in to how you feel about a place.

I long ago noticed that the Hamptons were going through changes as far as humans are concerned. There were more of us, there was more traffic, there was more hustle and bustle, there was a whole lot less sitting around staring at cows, which the editor of a glossy national magazine, who recently moved back here explained was the reason she left Bedford.

In these circumstances, as editor and publisher of Dan's Papers, sort of a non-elected public official, I've tried to use all my strength to channel these changes to make a quiet and beautiful Hamptons into a more vibrant and beautiful Hamptons. A lot of us have done this and we've stayed.

The thing about the Hamptons and Montauk and the North Fork is how the land has been carved by an arrangement of ponds, bays, harbors and lakes. How this arrangement works with our broad beaches, which are among the most beautiful on the planet, how our farms, our hills and our woodlands create an unparalleled natural environment of fogs, filtered light, sunsets and greenery is a breathtaking thing to behold. Always has been, always will be. If we handle it right.

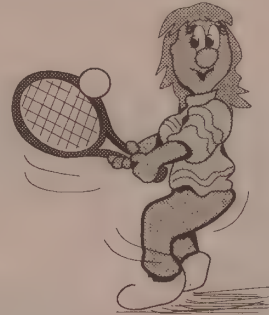

Take a canoe out on Georgica Pond or a sailboat in Napague Harbor. Follow a rumrunning trail through Hither Woods, or climb one of the massive walking dunes, in Amagansett. You can walk around the fringes of an absolutely magnificent lake in Northwest, off Two Holes of Water Road that will make you think you're in Northern Michigan. You can surf at Ditch Plains in Montauk or Georgica in East Hampton, play golf on one of a dozen courses, you can hack through the brush and the woods north of Deerfield for miles and for a dollar you can go by bike on a ferry boat ride to Shelter Island. You can volunteer to help with the grape harvest or the potato harvest and in Noyac you can stroll the sea-shell laden beach of Jessup's Neck for two miles without seeing a soul.

Of course you can stay home and surround yourself with the gossip pages of all the New York City newspapers and complain that the Hamptons are nothing but parties and celebrities. And you can also sit by the side of the Montauk Highway and complain about the traffic there, to which I offer no defense.

On the other hand, probably because of our proximity to New York City, culture sizzles in the Hamptons. The Parrish Art Museum is tripling in size, physically, and will soon become a major national museum. We have the Bay Street Theatre, Guild Hall, the brand new Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center, now in its second year, and this summer we should have a music school on Shelter Island run by Mr. and Mrs. Itzak Perlman. We also have a damn good film festival, a world class horse show, a legendary artists-writers baseball game, art galleries that are a

Unfortunately We Don't Have The Latest Press Tour Of Plum Island Story Here

By Dan Rattiner

In some of the other weekly newspapers in this community you'll read about what it's like on Plum Island, the island that's been converted into an animal disease research laboratory with barbed wire all around. The reason is that our editorial department sat around the big white table last Friday morning for our weekly meeting and when I said that the lab was opening its doors to give tours to reporters and other members of the media on Saturday and who would like to go, not a hand went up.

"Isn't there anybody who would like to go?" I asked. "I mean, it's a high security area, always off limits, this is a big opportunity."

"I'd go except that I have birds and dogs and cats at home," Jerry Cimisi said.

"What's that got to do with it?" I asked.

"Well if you go there - even if you take all the precautions - you take the shower twice and exchange your clothing for the lab robes and everything, they still tell you when you leave to stay away from birds and animals."

"There was an article in Newsday," somebody else said at the table. "That last year nine horses dropped dead from the encephalitis virus. I mean, maybe they got it there."

"What about Bill Smith?" somebody said. "The man who heads up that 'Fish Unlimited' organization?"

"Is he sick?"

"Gives you the creeps," somebody else said.

As you can see the editorial round table for Dan's Papers every Friday morning bears some similarity to the famous literary round table to the Algonquin Hotel for the New Yorker Magazine way back in the '20s and '30s. For those unfamiliar with the situation, the public relations and marketing people on Plum Island are only giving access to the place for the press because they want to expand their mission. In addition to the study of animal diseases which they've been doing since 1954, they want to add the study of diseases that affect both animals and humans and which are currently not found in this country. They've already made an application for more federal funds, I think they want two billion dollars now.

Plum Island is only seven miles from the Hamptons; you can clearly see it out there across the water, off to the north, although you can't see the chain link fences. The way to get there is to go out the North Fork to Orient Point and take a three-mile ferry ride, courtesy of the United States Department of Agriculture. How they could possibly invite the media out for the day to tour the place, to rally

"No, but he went there last summer and they made him take off all his clothes and he took a shower and put on the lab clothes, did the tour, took another shower and then changed back to his street clothes and when he got back to Orient Point, he realized he'd had never taken off his sweaty wrist watch. He'd done the whole tour with the wrist watch that he brought to the island and came home still wearing it."

public support, is beyond me.

A half century ago when the government bought the island and eventually turned it into an animal disease study center, it might have been a good idea. The number of people living on the East End back then could be counted on one hand and there were nothing but back roads between here and the big city; it was a pretty isolated place. Today there are about 100,000 people living within a thirty-mile radius of the island and in the summertime that number triples and includes probably half of the super wealthy masters of the universe and two thirds of all the major talent; literary, artistic, music and dance, etc. in the United States. One little piece of nasty chemistry coming out of Plum Island under somebody's fingernail or wrist watch could wipe out much of the life force of this country.

Expand the place? They should shut it down or move the operation to the middle of a nowhere that's still a nowhere, maybe Utah or Southern Nevada.

What they do here, in the name of science, is inject various research animals with deadly viruses and then try and find a cure for the illness that they have caused before the animal dies. Just about everything they try doesn't work, because when it does work they send it off the island for mass production and try some new incurable disease and some new unproven medicine. If any public relations person can make lemonade out of those lemons, he ought to be given a prize.

"Isn't Plum Island the place where in that book Silence of the Lambs, the FBI suggests that Hannibal Lecter be allowed to go off on a vacation?" someone at the table said.

"Impossible," somebody else at the table said. "I saw the movie."

"No, it's in the book."

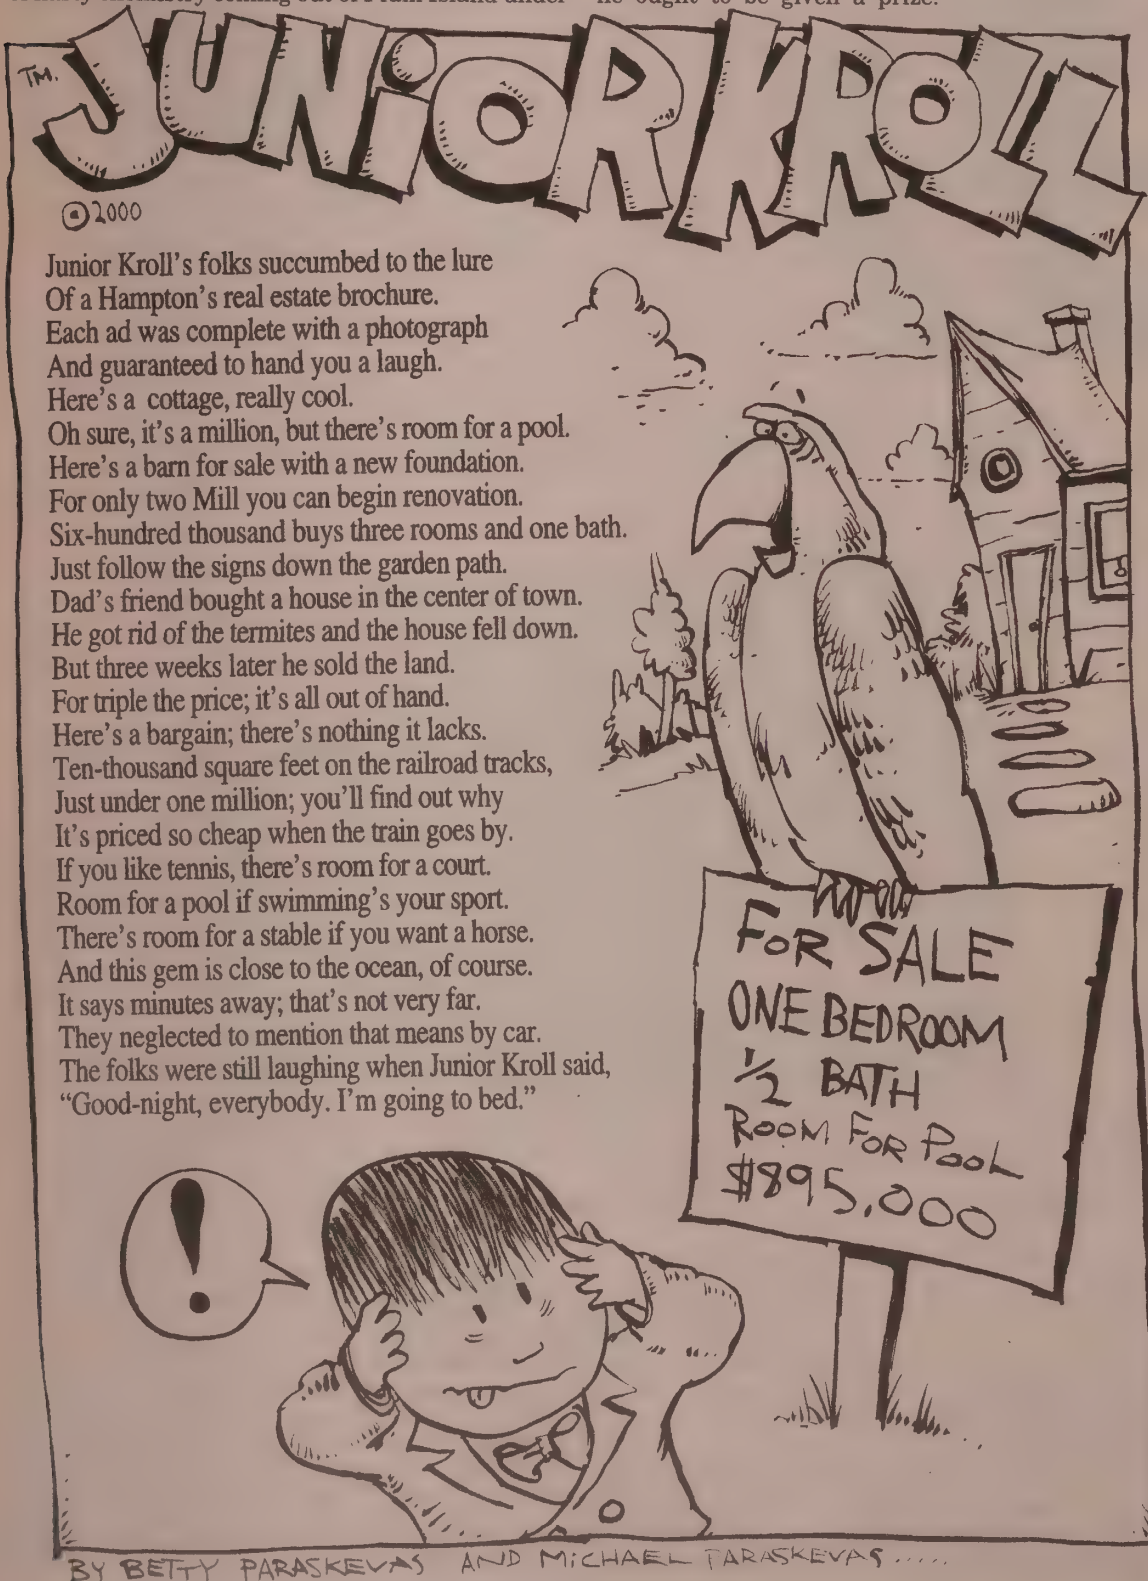

Someone actually had a copy of the book with them and looked it up and there it was on page 148. FBI agent Clarice Starling is in the visitor's lounge at the Federal Penitentiary visiting serial killer Hannibal Lecter who's on the other side of the bars serving a 200-year sentence for hacking up people and eating them. She's there because she wants Lecter's help in finding still another serial killer, a man who kills his victims and then skins them. She thinks Lecter has information and she's willing to make a deal. I quote from the book.

"Dr. Lecter, the senator has a remarkable offer."

"I'll decide that. You spoke to her so soon?"

"Yes, she's not holding anything back. This is all she's got so it's not a matter for bargaining. This is it, everything, one offer." She glanced up from her briefcase... "If you help us find Buffalo Bill in time to save Catherine Martin unharmed, you get the following: transferred to the Veterans Administration Hospital at Oneida Park, New York to a cell with a view of the woods around the hospital, maximum security measures still apply... The remarkable thing: one week a year, you will leave the hospital and go here." She put a map in the food carrier. Dr. Lecter did not pull it through. "Plum Island," she continued. "Every afternoon of

ON REINCARNATION...

Take A Number

It's Not Christianity, It's Not Judaism, It's Not Buddhism, What Is It?

By Dan Rattiner

Ever since I was little I have held to the idea of reincarnation. Being alive is so much fun. How cruel that it has to end. Does it really have to do that?

Early on, I clung to the hope that when I die I would go to heaven or in the worst case hell. In any case something was better than nothing. But when I got to the age of five I found my parents were waffling on this idea of heaven and hell. Then when I was ten I found that even my religious leader, in this case a rabbi, was waffling. I decided there was reincarnation.

My idea of reincarnation is that when I get old and die I ascend to this waiting room where there is a long wooden bench upon which a whole lot of other fellows quietly sit. A closer look shows they all hold a tag in their hands with a number on it. It is sort of like what you get at a delicatessen. Well, I go down to where the tags are, get one, and sit down to wait until my number is called.

Now it becomes clear. I am indeed what I always thought I was which is a soul. My soul, this invisible bit of energy, will soon slide down the bench, get to the end, have its number called and be assigned a new job. Become THIS, God will say. Make the best of it. Be all that you can be. And he snaps his fingers and I am sent back down to earth as a Yorkshire Terrier. Or a broccoli. And it is once again my job to become the best of whatever it is I have been assigned. Take this flesh, these mortal bones, and make them the best Yorkshire Terrier or broccoli they can be.

I liked reincarnation. Now I got to thinking that, from this perspective, given all the kinds of living things that there are on the earth, my being a human being named Dan was surely very special. If you consider that my soul would be assigned say when I got back up to the bench and slid down to the end.

"You were a deer, You were supposed to be QUICK."

Or I could be an ant in the next lifetime. In an instant I could be stepped on. Or I be a turkey and get ground up and put into a patty at McDonald's to be eaten by those who don't eat beef. Or maybe they would go to the trouble to make me into a patty at McDonalds and I'd sit there on the heat table all day and nobody would ever choose me. At closing time they'd just toss me out. What a waste. All that for nothing.

Well, it surely would be quite some time until I came around to being a human again. Better make the best of it.

You only go around once in life. (Why does everything seem to be an advertising slogan?)

Thinking about it further, I began to realize just what really incredible luck I had had this time around. Here on the earth there were maybe a billion species. One of them was the absolutely best one. I got it. Now look at what circumstances I might have been born in to. I could have been a human being born to beggars in Calcutta. I could have been a human being born to eat the berries in the jungles of Brazil. But

But it was 1939, the year that I was born, it was good to be male, to be a white person and, in a screwy sort of way, to be Jewish.

---

to just one species each time and if you consider the millions even billions of sorts of species there are on the earth, then this was quite something. On other occasions, I would be assigned to a living thing that was pretty boring. I'd come down as a deer and sometime in November I'd get shot and sprawled across a car fender.

"Now look what happened to you," the Lord would

no. I was born in the United States of America, undoubtedly the best single country in the world. We have freedom. The Bill of Rights. The Constitution. And we have prospered beyond anyone's wildest dreams. We have the best medicine in the world. We have the highest per capita income in the world. We are a nation of abundance. Our problems involve overeating and sitting around doing nothing. Such problems!

Go to the United Nations. When they talk about Third World Countries that is not us. When they talk to one another they talk in just one language that everybody around the world is supposed to learn. English. That's my language. This is incredible.

Now here in the United States what is the best city ever created by man? It's New York. My city. And what is arguably the most beautiful village in the country. East Hampton. My town. Wow! When I handed in my number and got assigned to this job for the next eighty years or so I had no idea what I was getting into. This is unbelievable. A once in a lifetime experience! This is an assignment that my soul could not turn down!

So here I am, assigned to the best of the best of the best of the best. And I am given guidelines. I am told right from wrong. I am shown the Ten Commandments. I am told work hard, help others, live clean, stay alert, make the most of it, help everybody else, don't drink to excess, be loving and go to bed early. Hey, I can do this.

And it gets better. Not only am I the top dog species in the top dog country in the top dog town

I am also, in this top dog town from one of the top dog groups. I didn't plan it that way. I don't even think it is a good idea that it be that way. But in 1939, the year that I was born, it was good to be a male, to be a white person and, in a screwy sort of way, to be Jewish. Though the Jews had been kicked around all over the world and between 1939 and 1945 went through the worst imaginable, by 1945 when I was six it was a group on the way up.

But not all the way up. It was the WASPS who were all the way up. The Jews were tied for second with maybe half a dozen other groups. On reflection, it seems a surprise that given everything else is Number One, I wasn't made a WASP.

Still it was a pretty good number I had got handed. One in a trillion. And not likely to come around again soon.

If the idea of the uniqueness of this made me melancholy, (since it was so unlikely it would ever come around again soon), I could feel even more melancholy as I began to contemplate my place in the cosmos from the macrocosmic point of view.

The earth was just the third planet circling the sun. There were two closer and five further out. We were in the middle of the pack. Nothing special about that.

And our solar system is nothing special either.

Astronomers tell us it is neither among the youngest or the oldest, the biggest or the smallest. Our mighty sun is only one hundredth the size of some of the other suns.

Furthermore, our sun and its planets are tucked off in one corner of our galaxy. It isn't the farthest thing off in the corner which might have made it special and it is nowhere near to the center which also might have made it special.

And our galaxy is just one among millions of galaxies. Until last month, it was thought there were twenty million. Now, information from the Hubble Telescope tells us there are a sixty million galaxies. And since just like that we have discovered another forty million galaxies, there is no reason to think we won't discover eighty million more next week or perhaps two hundred million the week after that.

Also, as evidence mounts that we are all only the result of a Big Bang, mathematicians have gotten out their chalk and figured out where it all began. And this galaxy and solar system and planet are neither in the center or at the far rim scouting out for new unknowns. We are once again just somewhere in the middle of the pack.

Well, God is a busy guy and he's got a lot to do and it is a good thing he has a lot of assistants and is All Seeing. For awhile there I thought he really WOULD take notice of how I was doing here on Planet Earth and for another while there I thought he really wouldn't since we are so tucked away in some obscure corner somewhere.

But now, once again, I think he does know. He gave me this number. He wouldn't have done that if he didn't want me to do my best and bring back a good report. And so I intend to do so and I will. I'll get started first thing tomorrow morning.

Dead Man Walking

Sister Helen Prejean, Nominated For Nobel Peace Prize, Talks About Her Work

By Chris Stanley

Renowned author, Sister Helen Prejean, while on a world tour calling for a moratorium on the death penalty, offered a book-signing lecture as part of an evening service on the festive Eve of Catherine of Siena, at the Siena Spirituality Center this past Saturday.

Siena Spirituality Center, Program Director, Sister Peggy Tully, who has worked with women prisoners on Rikers Island at the Rose Singer Correctional Facility, as well as with women at the Riverhead jail for the past six years, gave Sister Prejean's background, as part of her introduction.

Sister Helen Prejean, author of Dead Man Walking was born in Louisiana and spent all of her life there. She holds a Masters Degree in Religious Education from St. Paul University in Ottawa, Canada. She is a member of the order of the Sisters of St. John of Medaille, a religious community that has made a commitment to "stand on the side of the poor."

Early in her career, Sister Prejean served as a teacher, Religious Education Director, and as a Formation Director for her congregation. For the past twenty years she has been a spiritual advisor and counselor for inmates on death row at the Louisiana State Penitentiary. She has also interfaced with the families of murder victims and is the founder of a group in New Orleans called Survive.

Her world famous novel, recounting a nun's journey into the dehumanizing world of penitentiaries, caught the hearts and minds of readers with such impact as to have had her nominated twice for the Nobel Peace Prize, both in 1998, and again in 1999.

The powerful novel, which was adapted into a gripping feature film and won actress, Susan Sarandon a "Best Actress" Academy Award for her portrayal of the thoughtful, compassionate nun who lived through the dehumanizing death row process of "scripted" legalized killing while giving spiritual support to Elmo Patrick Sonnier, the convicted murderer of a teenage couple that had been abducted from a lover's lane, raped stabbed, and brutally shot in the back of the head at close range.

Sister Helen Prejean's courageous book, which eloquently challenges the morality of our punitive system, was on the best seller list for thirty-one weeks, and received a Pulitzer Prize.

Sister Prejean's lecture was delivered in plain English, spiced with humor, and well documented with facts and statistics. She candidly gave her listeners a first-hand accounting of what it's like to be poor... especially in the State of Louisiana., where she accompanied five inmates to their deaths. Her book goes into graphic detail of the execution process, which is unbelievably cruel and unnatural punishment – even for the perpetrator of the most heinous crime.

Sister Prejean's book gives graphic details: "Louisiana used to hang its criminals until the state legislature in 1940 decided that electrocution would be more humane and efficient. Hanging didn't always work. As the noose was placed around the condemned neck, the knot had to be positioned exactly right, or the victim died a slow death of strangulation – or worse, decapitation. Death by electrocution was introduced in the United States in 1890, when William Kemmler was killed by the State of New York. The U.S. Supreme Court, upholding the state appellate court's decision that death by electrocution was not cruel and unusual punishment, had concluded that a current of such sufficient force would certainly produce instantaneous and therefore painless death."

Sister Prejean gives a number of historic accountings of the cruelty inflicted by the "scripted" deaths of several inmates. "The current had been passing through his body for fifteen seconds when the electrode at the head was removed. Suddenly the breast heaved. There was a straining at the straps which bound him. A purplish foam covered the lips and was spattered over the leather head band. The man was alive. Warden, physician, guards ... everybody lost their wits. There was a startled cry for the current to be turned on again... An odor of burning flesh and singed hair filled the room, for a moment, a blue flame played about the base of the victim's spine. This time the electricity flowed four minutes. That was in 1890...In 1985 the electrocution of William Vandiver by the state of Indiana took seventeen minutes, requiring five charges of electricity... The only man to walk away from an electric chair alive was seventeen-year old Willie Francis. On May 2, 1946, he was strapped into Louisiana's portable electric chair in the jail in St. Martin Parish. As the current hit his body witnesses reported that the youth's 'lips puffed out and he groaned and jumped so that the chair came off the floor, and he said 'Take it off. Let me breathe.' The officials applied several more jolts, but Francis was still alive. They then helped him back to his cell to recuperate from his ordeal. The U.S. Supreme Court, considering whether it could be considered 'cruel and unusual' punishment or 'double jeopardy' to subject Francis to electrocution a second time, rendered a split verdict. On May 8, 1947, Louisiana officials once again strapped Willie Francis into the chair, but this time they succeeded in killing him."

In her book, Sister Helen further recounts documented descriptions by witnesses of countless executions: "The hands turn red, then white, and the cords if the neck stand out like steel bands... The prisoner's limbs, fingers, toes, and face are severely contorted... The force of the electric current is so powerful that the prisoner's eyeballs sometimes pop out on his cheeks... The prisoner often defecates, urinates, and vomits blood and drool ... Sometimes the prisoner catches fire... There is a sound like bacon frying and the sickly sweet smell of burning flesh..." She quotes Dr. Harold Hillman, director of the Unity Laboratory in Applied Neurology, University of Surrey, England, who studied autopsies of thirteen men who were electrocuted in Florida and Alabama, as saying that the electrocutions were "intensely painful" and that the prisoners "retained consciousness for several minutes."

In her book, Sister Prejean says: "This is the United States of America and these are government officials in charge and there's a law sanctioning and upholding what is going on here, so it all must be legitimate and just, or so one compartment of my brain tells me, the part that studied civics in high school, the part that wants to trust that my country would never violate the human rights of its citizens... But Jesus Christ, whose way of life I try to follow, refused to meet hate with hate and violence with violence. I pray for the strength to be like him. I cannot believe in a God who metes out hurt for hurt, pain for pain, torture for torture. Nor do I believe that God invests human representatives with such power to torture and kill. The paths of history are stained with the blood of those who have fallen victim to "God's Avengers." Kings and Popes and military generals and heads of state have killed, claiming God's authority and God's blessing. I do not believe in such a God."

Bishop Ott, who spoke at Elmo Patrick Sonnier's grave site added his sentiments, "The death penalty is a simplistic solution to a complex moral issue. Executions signal to society that violence is an acceptable way of dealing with human problems."

"What makes the death penalty possible," Sister Prejean said, "is when we are disconnected from the humanism. Humanism is all about connection. We are all connected to one another. Separation is what kills us... and churches separate us more than anything... all the same people always gathering together... never crossing the boundaries that expose them to other people, other groups. so that they can see the humanity they share with them."

"Even if a criminal were unlikable and repulsive," Sister Helen said in her book, "even if he were Manson, I still maintain that the state should not kill him. For me, the unnegotiable moral bedrock on which a society must be built is that killing by anyone, under any conditions, cannot be tolerated. And that includes the government."

Sister Helen further stated that: "New York State reinstated the death penalty. Governor Pataki said that it was a deterrent. We have more acts of violent crime now than New York State has ever known."

Sister Prejean added: "When I was in high school they were executing people in Louisiana. The Catholic Church has been behind the death penalty for a long, long time, but now they are beginning to question it. There is a movement toward change."

Sister Prejean has succeeded in getting Christian Fundamentalist Pat Robertson's support for the moratorium on the death penalty and is currently touring the world in an intense effort to abolish the death penalty.

A large percentage of death row inmates were proven to have been innocent after their executions. Sister Helen cited an example in the case of Anthony Porter, who had been incarcerated for fifteen years on death row before a group of journalism students decided to investigate and were able to prove his innocence and uncover the identity of the real murderer in a matter of just a few days.

Sister Prejean urged us to "look at all the mistakes that are being made. The poor and the black, whose voices are seldom heard for lack of proper representation," added Sister Helen. "and the Columbine tragedy... the media and the whole nation was in an uproar over the Columbine shootings, but no one takes any notice that hundreds of children are killed daily in poor black areas... If a white person gets killed everyone takes notice. If a poor or black person is killed there is rarely a conviction. Isn't it strange that no wealthy people ever get executed?"

Human rights, as well as equal justice for all, was a major theme in Sister Prejean's lecture. She reminded her listeners that "the cross is a symbol of execution" and that "Jesus Christ had been executed as a criminal."

And finally, Sister Helen described the "unseen victims"...the mothers, children, siblings and wives of the executed, who stand and watch the gruesome act of revenge from a special, less privileged viewing section of the execution theater. "Through the death penalty we multiply the victims...whether they be members of the victim's family who are polarized over the death penalty, as not everyone is of one mind over Capital Punishment, or the innocent members of the criminal's family, who watch their loved one go through the final torture."

In her book, Sister Helen courageously addressed underlying causes for crime: "I watch Reagan slash funds for prenatal and child care, low-income housing, employment training, and food subsidies. And as social programs are slashed, new prisons are built. Between 1975 and 1991 Louisiana expanded its adult prisons from three to twelve, with prison populations increasing by 249 percent. Throughout the 1980s Louisiana ranked first, second, or third in the nation as the state incarcerating the greatest number of its residents - at annual cost per inmate of $15,000... Almost every family I meet in St. Thomas has a relative in prison... but the most frightening revelation is the treatment of neighborhood residents by the police. Story after story, incident after incident is told of people, especially young men, picked up and abused, handcuffed, beaten, and sometimes killed... In 1989 one in four black men in the twenty-to-twenty-nine age group was under the control of the criminal system. As one woman put it, 'our young men leave here either in a police car or a hearse.' "

Nobody wins when even one person is killed. Sister Helen reminded us that Jesus said: "We are all worth more than the worst thing we ever did in the whole of our life."

"When we kill someone," added Sister Prejean, "we are punishing them for that one act, and nothing that makes them a better person afterwards can ever redeem them. We take away any level of humanity... any chance at redemption, and no matter what good they do the rest of their lives we punish and kill them for that one act."

Dan's Papers "They Made The Movie Here" Film Festival

(featuring films that either takes place in the Hamptons or were filmed here)

April 29th ~ Masquerade

A taunting romantic suspense thriller of an ambiguous young man's ambitions and the wealthy wife he might have married for her dowry. Beautiful people and likewise beautiful, close-by locations, highlight the dark plot.

Short: Nice

May 6th ~ Amistad

Based on a true story, the movie chronicles the incredible journey of a group of enslaved Africans who are trying to get back to their beloved homeland. They take over the Amistad which gets seized by US authorities off Montauk and brought to Connecticut where they are charged with murder & imprisoned to await their fate. A very emotional movie and well acted.

Short: Shoto-Kan Karate-do

May 13th ~ The Dain Curse

Fittingly adapted from an early Dashiell Hammett novel, this well produced, film version is crammed full with the smoking-gun intrigue of The Maltese Falcon author.

Short: 1994 Artists Writers Game (Encore)

May 20th ~ Grey Gardens

This somewhat shocking documentary actually remains compellingly poetic and touching. It captures a small portion of the later years of Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter, Edie (aunt and cousin of Jacqueline Onassis), filmed in their decaying, over grown mansion in East Hampton. Once seen, Edith and Edie, will not soon leave you.

The Mad Cowboy

Former Montana Cattleman, Now A Vegetarian, To Talk At Southampton College

By Jerry Cimisi

In 1996, Oprah Winfrey had Howard Lyman as a guest on her show. Lyman, a former Montana cattle rancher turned vegan (someone who eats no animal products) talked about the mad cow disease that had caused not only a health scare in Britain but had gotten British beef banned from countries such as France and America. Lyman's comments on the practices of the meat industry and the very real possibility that mad cow disease would surface in the United States caused both him and Winfrey to be sued by a group of Texas cattlemen under the Texas Food Disparagement Act – on the grounds that the show had directly caused the meat industry a loss of business. And, in fact, meat futures, already experiencing shaky trading because of mad cow concerns, plummeted further.

In 1998 the case was adjudicated; the suit was found without merit. Whether or not Lyman's jeremiads had affected the cattle business, he and Winfrey had the right to disseminate information and discuss opinions. That year, Lyman published, along with Glen Merzer, Mad Cowboy, Plain Truth From the Cattle Rancher Who Won't Eat Meat.

In his mid forties Lyman was running a cattle ranch he had taken over from his father. The operation had come down through the family from Lyman's great-grandfather, who had begun an organic (not that they used the word then) dairy farm. As a young man Lyman inherited the farm from his father, a farm Lyman modernized into an "agribusiness." In an interview prior to his May 4 talk at the college, Lyman said, "I had about 7,000 head of cattle. In terms of size, that was in the top ten percent in the state. That number of cattle was replaced two or three times during the year. We'd go through about 15,000-20,000 animals a year."

When Lyman had taken over the farm he had decided, against his father's advice, to go completely with the latest methods. He fed and medicated his herd according the most "scientific" practices – such as feeding cattle the rendered parts of other livestock, (including cattle) and processed chicken feces, common practices in the industry. And he doused the land with pesticide.

"The trees were dying," he said. "There were no worms in the dirt. It was like asbestos."

And one day Lyman woke up and could not get out of bed. He had a tumor on his spinal cord. He was given little hope of ever walking again. He was forty-five.

Lyman said he lay in bed in the hospital one night and thought over what really counted in his life. In his book he writes: "Having ten thousand acres didn't count. Having seven thousand head of cattle didn't count. Having thirty trucks and twenty tractors and seven combines didn't count. Having a $5-million-a-year agribusiness didn't count.

"My family counted and the land counted."

Lyman underwent an operation in which the tumor, that was just beneath the spinal cord, was fished out by extracting a nerve to which it was attached. In the process of his recovery he changed almost everything about his life. He not only stopped dumping pesticides on the land, he stopped being a cattle rancher. He confronted his "disregard for animals as living creatures" and became a vegetarian, eschewing all meat products and then, eventually, a vegan. "Going from vegetarian to vegan had a bigger and more positive effect on my health than going from carnivore to vegetarian," he said.

"For the first year," he said, "I was the worst vegetarian in the world. I ate too many dairy products. I also didn't tell anyone outside of my family. At that point I would have rather been caught on a stolen horse than admit I was a vegetarian in Montana."

Today Lyman is the president of the International Vegetarian Union.

When Lyman stopped cattle ranching and tried to run a farm on an organic basis he found he could not get a loan from his bank. He was told their "other customers wouldn't care for it." Lyman came to realize that by utterly changing his ways he was taking away business from the chemical, pesticide and fertilizer manufacturers and he began to understand the financial web that had been woven about the modern farmer.

During the past ten years, Lyman said, he has travelled a million miles lecturing on the ugly practices of the meat industry and the dangers of the agribusiness practices he had once heeded.

During the past generation medical science has produced innumerable studies that show a vegetarian diet contributes to a lower incidence to a wide range of diseases. For instance, the German Cancer Research Center found that among 1,900 vegetarians, they fell victim to all forms of cancers at a rate fifty-six percent lower than the general population. A study in Japan that included 120,000 men, found that vegetarians were less susceptible to prostate cancer than meats eaters. In the 1980s the National Academy of Sciences said that in regards to cancer, "vegetarian diets are associated with a lower risk." And the New England Journal of Medicine published a study that found the breast milk of vegetarian women had only one to two percent of the pesticide contamination of the breast milk of non-vegetarian women.

"When I started doing this work," Lyman said, "it was calculated that one in five Americans would get cancer; now it's one in three."

What are some of the practices in the meat industry that make its "product" so unhealthy?

Most of America's meat is laced with pesticides. Crops used for cattle feed are allowed to have higher levels of pesticides than crops grown directly for human consumption. Pesticide is stored in the fat of an animal, which will provide an even higher concentration of pesticide to any animal (such as people) who eat an animal that has grazed on pesticide crops.

Because livestock such as cattle and chicken are raised on a mass production assembly line scale, they are feed with an eye to economy, not health. When animals are slaughtered, the portion of the carcass (usually about half) that cannot be sold as is, is ground up, "rendered"; and much of this byproduct is recycled back into animal feed. So cows and chickens would be forced to practice cannibalism when they dined on the fare their keepers provided. It has only been recently, because of the incidence of mad cow disease (bovine spongiform encephalopathy – BSE) that cow parts are no longer fed to other cows.

But cattle still dine on another recycled product: the fecal matter of chickens. And chickens do also. In his book, Lyman quotes from a Department of Agriculture study that showed 99 percent of broiler carcasses had "detectable levels of E. coli," a bacteria which is found in fecal matter as well as the intestines. And thirty percent of the chicken eaten in America have salmonella, while seventy percent or more have campylobacter, a pathogen less known to the public than salmonella, but much more deadly: it is responsible for 200-800 deaths a year and millions of cases of sickness.

"If everybody saw what goes into a good old

American hotdog," said Lyman, "they might not be so eager to eat them. I doubt most people would go into the butcher's and order cheeks or eye lids, but that's the kind of stuff that gets ground up into hot dogs. It's like everything they could scrape off the slaughterhouse floor."

If recycling the remains of slaughtered animals is "economic" to livestock farms, the larger picture plainly reveals the uneconomic nature of producing meat. It takes sixteen pounds of grain to produce one pound of beef. A half pound of grain per day would provide a sizable portion of food for one person; in other words, thirty-two people could eat from the grain that is needed to produce a meal that would suffice for only one or two people.

Health and economics aside, how does Lyman now view, from a moral standpoint, the slaughtering of livestock animals? If he was raised in the environment in which one was directly involved in the slaughter of animals, he nonetheless said, "I think any time you get to slaughtering an animal yourself you really didn't enjoy it. Any of the kids who had to cut off the heads of chickens – and have the body run around for a minute – and be standing in the middle of blood and feathers isn't happy about it.

"But we brainwash kids. And we call it 4-H. We tell kids it's OK to kill that animal they just raised and call by name. It'll help pay for college. You tell kids you're helping to feed people."

How did Lyman respond to those who quote Genesis: that human beings have dominion over animals?

Lyman said, "The word dominion means stewardship. We have stewardship over our children. That doesn't mean we can eat them."

No matter how compelling the arguments Lyman – and others – raise about the health, economic and spiritual issues, connected with the meat industry, meat is not only big business but a deeply entrenched habit in society. Yet Lyman seemed optimistic about a steady conversion to a country that eats less and less meat.

"Why do you think Kellogg's bought Worthington Food, the company that prepares vegetarian foods for Seventh Day Adventists and Phillip Morris (who owns Kraft) bought Boca Burger, the company that makes the latest selling veggie burger on the East Coast? These big conglomerates are not doing this out of the kindness of their hearts, they see money in it."

Howard Lyman will be speaking at Southampton College in the Avram Theatre May 4, 7 p.m. The event is sponsored by the student organization PEACE (Protecting Every Aspect Concerning the Environment).

that week you can walk on the beach or swim in the ocean with no surveillance closer than seventy-five yards, but it'll be SWAT surveillance, that's it."

"If I decline?"

"Maybe you can hang some café curtains in there..."

He pulled the carrier through. "Plum Island." He said.

"Look off the tip of Long Island, the north finger there."

"Plum Island, the Plum Island Animal Disease Central (Federal Hoof and Mouth Disease Research)," it says. "Sounds charming."

"That's just part of the island, it has a nice beach and good quarters. The terns nest there in the spring."

"Terns." Dr. Lechter sighed. He cocked his head slightly and touched the center of his red lip with his red tongue.

Not that I'm an alarmist or anything but have you ever noticed that there have been some pretty strange diseases here on Eastern Long Island in recent years? One year all the scallop population gets wiped out, another year the lobster population gets wiped out, the horses trot along and then fall over dead and we've got brown tide that shows up every five or six years up and down the coast that has scientists baffled. There's also the survey that just came that shows we have a high rate of breast cancer in this area. Anybody remember the year that the deer swam from Plum Island to Orient Point? Didn't know that they could do that, did you?

So read about Plum Island in another newspaper, then offer up a prayer for the reporter.

Who's Here:

By Dan Rattiner

Betsey Johnson, the clothes designer, bought a house in East Hampton last fall. It's the first house she's ever owned, and she's very excited about it.

"I can't walk two feet out here without somebody recognizing me. I had thought it was just the Old Guard living in the Hamptons, but it's everybody. I just feel so at home, and my stuff is in so many of the stores."

Betsey Johnson first came out to the Hamptons in 1965 as part of the Andy Warhol crew. "Andy had this wonderful, gorgeous beachfront spread in Montauk. We were all the freaks coming out here. As for the rest of the Hamptons, it was funky farmers and the stuffy Old Guard and tourists. It's so different now."

Betsey rented her own place in Amagansett for nine years. She began renting it when her daughter was eight years old. Then, when Loulou was seventeen, she and her mother did not see eye to eye, which so often happens with a parent and a child, and Loulou moved to Atherton, a rich suburb of Palo Alto, California.

"Now we're back together again," Betsey said, "and this place is just perfect. We can be together but separate. There are no neighbors on top of you."

I am having coffee with Betsey in the kitchen of her new home. Her dog is running around. Loulou, whom I met briefly, is in the livingroom watching television.

Betsey is a beautiful blonde woman dressed exactly as you might imagine, in her own unique designs. Lots of little bows and things. She is filled with enthusiasm, a trait she has had all her life. It is infectious and just being around her is exciting.

Betsey was born and raised in Weathersfield, Connecticut, which was a farm town back then. Her dad was a mechanical engineer who worked at a factory in Windsor, a town nearby. The factory made pot-bellied stoves and castings for Colt and Winchester rifles.

Betsey went to Weathersfield grammar school and Terryville High School.

"I loved art. I had the best teacher, Henrietta Card. I also had a dancing teacher, Anne Pimm, who had been a chorus girl and she dragged me to New York and I studied acrobatics, jazz, tap dancing, ballet, Hindu and Spanish dancing. I also went to Ted Shawn's School of Dance at Jacob's Pillow, the counterpart of Tanglewood.

"I was a lifeguard in the summer, an ice cream girl at Friendly's, but I died for cheerleading. I was a cheerleader for nine years. I was the aerialist."

Betsey went to New York City at sixteen to be a dancer, and passed an audition. "I loved the work." She bought sequins and costumes. She was also accepted by Pratt Institute and went there for a year, where she excelled at cheerleading, art and dance. She was also the president of her class.

But she didn't like being in Brooklyn where Pratt was. It was dangerous on the streets and the kids all wore beepers for that reason, and she decided that if she was serious – and this is about cheer leading not design – she should transfer to a big school.

"I checked out Boston University and finally decided to go to Syracuse. I was there when Ernie Davis was the big running back on the football team. I tried out for cheerleader and missed in my freshman year, but then I was accepted as an acrobat. In my senior year, I was co-captain of the team and travelled with the football team to Notre Dame, also to Miami and for a Bowl game in Los Angeles. I did really well in school."

But, like a lot of people at the time, Betsey knew that the real excitement was in New York City and she thought, "I've got to go there. I mean the worst thing that could happen is if it doesn't work out I will just leave."

Scouring the want ads, she saw there were a great many jobs in the fashion industry available, also at some magazines.

"I knew fashion," she said. "I could cut and sew. My mother when I was growing up sewed clothes for kids and I had made a lot of my own costumes for solos when I was dancing. I had been a Brownie, a Girl Scout, I had gotten every badge."

In Betsey's senior year at college, Mademoiselle magazine picked her as one of twenty girls around the country to become a guest editor for one edition of the publication. She was flown to New York, put up at the Barbizon, and worked as guest editor to the editor of the fabric department.

She spent three weeks in New York City and also as part of the program, one week in Europe. Betsey went to London, where she met Viva and Mary Quant. During the day she visited museums and galleries. Also Harrods. At nights she would go to the discos and SoHo, places with psychedelic lights and music, pink pillows and club rooms that were all mattresses and then crawl back to the Hilton.

At the end of the program, she continued as assistant editor to the fabric editor D.J. White, who as it happened, went off on maternity leave to have a baby. They offered Betsey the job running the department for the next six months.

Betsey said, "The fabric department – they don't even have a section for the fabric department in the magazine anymore – had incredible files. I was dazzled by all of the kinds of lamés and dayglo colors and Lurexes."

In her $62-a month six story walkup under the Brooklyn Bridge, Betsey designed little miniskirts, leotard-like costumes and dancing school type t-shirts and she began selling them to friends on the side.

"I absolutely love doing this," she said, "but I thought, who's going to know about it?"

At Mademoiselle, she was given a job doing illustrations. Her first illustrations were one page of heavy black line drawings of shoes. After that, they gave her three pages and then six pages.

"Then D.J. came back and I was transferred to a clerk-assistant job, a secretary in the art department. But I'm still selling my clothes. So I made up a catalogue and put it in the ladies room at the magazine."

From that catalogue came her first big break. Mademoiselle featured one of her shirts, a t-shirt with ribbons and flowers in the "shop by mail" section.

"Suddenly the orders started coming in. I could do three a night, ten on a weekend. I needed to buy three yards of cotton crochet fabric. I was charging $10 and $20 for a shirt. I had to borrow money from my parents to finance it."

Back at Mademoiselle, the editors called her in.

"They said I should really be a designer. I was a good illustrator but a great designer of clothes. They called up a garment manufacturer on Seventh Avenue to set up an interview but then it was cancelled when they found I didn't have any course credits in clothes designs."

It was at this point that Paul Young opened Paraphernalia, a store that imported neat stuff from Europe featuring the works of young designers in New York City. Young would put their names on the label.

"There were clothes by Joel Schumacher," Betsey said, "and by Betsey Johnson. At the store there were go-go dancers in the window in silver minis all day. There were stainless steel tractor seats to sit on. It was all chrome and rock and roll."

Soon Jackie O. was buying Betsey Johnson clothes. Ted Kennedy came in to buy clothes for his wife. Through her fitting model, Edie Sedgwick, Betsey met Andy Warhol and began hanging out with that crowd in Chelsea. "The name of the game was selling arty clothes to young socialites. I was so excited. I was high without drugs for five years."

She was featured in Time and also Life. Julie Christie bought her clothes. Twiggy wanted to meet her. Janis Joplin had her clothes, so did Veruschka.

At night Betsey went to Max's Kansas City. Soon she found herself in love with John Cale of the Velvet Underground. "We got married. We were all these kids, Andy was our daddy and from the Factory we'd go home to sleep. I'd design some clothes and we'd go to Max's."

Soon, though, everything began to get crazy. Young socialite ladies could buy a franchise of Paraphernalia for $20,000. Demand for product seemed insatiable.

"I'd do a satin-backed crepe shirt with bush pockets. They just wanted more and more and I finally began to feel this was not being creative anymore and I quit."

But not for long. Soon she hooked up with three friends in the business. With Barbara (Bunky) Washburn, who ran the production and design, and Anita Latorre, who ran European importing, they opened a boutique on 53rd Street called Betsey, Bunky and Nini.

Then Betsey hooked up with Alley Cat, whom

Betsey says knocked off her stuff, then she went to Coty as the star of the junior marketing division. At the end of her first year there she got a British Mini as bonus. She stayed a total of four years, taking the company to $5 million – but once again, as it became very large, with a big sales force, she felt people were telling her what to do and she quit again.

Her next ten years did not go well. She felt her customer was growing up and older and going into the job market and she tried designing contemporary working women clothes for them, but it didn't work out. By 1977, she had worked as a consultant for Sesame Street, designed rugby shirts for Gant, shoes for I. Miller and Capezio and matching outfits of yellow and white stripes in denim for Gingerbread Man.

She also got pregnant.

"I went to an astrologer and said, 'Everyone has all this love and respect for me but nobody is willing to take a risk for me.' And the astrologer said, 'Don't you know that Saturn is in the ascendancy?' In three months you'll have your own business and you'll look great"

It was shortly after that that Betsey Johnson found she had $60,000 she did not know about.

"It was at Thanksgiving dinner I was having at my Aunt Elsie's," she said. "She was talking about a stock called Dynotech, which was splitting all over the place and I remembered that years earlier, taking a tip from somebody I had met at Max's Kansas City, I had written a check to Ray Dirks to buy $10,000 worth of Dynotech stock but it had gone down and down and it had never occurred to me to look at it again. Now I looked at it the next day and it was worth $60,000."

"On August 10, 1978, with a partner, Shantal Bacon, and with the help of her father, Betsey put $100,000 together, which was matched by a top executive at Marine Midland, to open her own firm, Betsey Johnson, at Eighth Avenue and 35th Street. She got amazing press at her opening and was a smash hit.

"I made all the clothes in black and white and red and black and I was selling everything I could produce out of my loft on Franklin Street in SoHo. But in the second year everything collapsed.

"Annie Flanders of the SoHo News said everyone's trying to save me, why not open a store in SoHo and so I did, at Thompson, just west of Broadway. I decorated the store as if it were a scrapbook and that was a bit hit. I did rosebuds, flowerprints on my clothes for the first time. In 1982 I bought a condominium and we opened a second store on Columbus Avenue. Our own stores always work. We opened in Bloomingdale's backyard – and by 1995 we had thirty stores."

There are stores in Las Vegas, two in San Francisco, there is one in Seattle, Boston, South Beach, Houston, New Orleans, San Juan, London, and now in some of the best malls in the country.

"Loulou is now twenty-four. She is a real good designer, very opinionated. She has had to grow up in my shadow. She left six months ago to do volunteer work for old people and preschoolers. There is no aggressiveness, no competition; she loves it. She is into the teaching thing. And Loulou and I are real girlfriends again."

play review: greater tuna

By Janna Cord

A little slice of Texas has arrived in East Hampton in the form of the two act, two man comedy Greater Tuna, now playing at the John Drew Theater in Guild Hall. The Oak Hill Production Company has been granted the first rights to be released and are here for Long Island's premier of this hilarious and original show. Scott Hofer and Tony Butera brilliantly slip into twenty different characters in the two-hour play. The action takes place over the course of a late summer day in the third smallest town in Texas, known as Tuna. The bizarre and eclectic residents of this backward, ultra conservative, bible-beating community, keep the laughs coming.

The broadcasts of the local radio station, OKKK, tie the action together, with hosts Thurston Wheelis and Arles Struvie at the helm. From news to weather to several 'phone-in' shows, OKKK proves to be the prime source of information in Tuna. Thurston and Arles drone on and on in their deep Texas drawls, recounting the latest local news. On this day, the big news is the announcement of the winner of the Tuna Junior High School essay contest. Winning essays included "Human Rights, Why Bother?" and "The Other Side of Bigotry." Clearly Tuna is not the most politically correct community in the country, nor do they aim to be. These folks seem to be quite content with who they are. Aside from the blatant prejudice, Tuna also has the most insane climate. Harold Dean Lattimer's weather report for this day includes rain, sun, dust storms, darkness, wind and a tropical storm around 10 p.m. And what radio show is complete without a sponsor, in this case Didi's Used Firearms, whose motto is "If Didi can't kill it, it's immortal." So sets the scene for a day in the life of Tuna, Texas.

Each scene jumps in and out of the lives of some of the residents. Tuna's most dysfunctional family, the Bumillers, steals the show. Bertha Bumiller, the buxom matriarch played by Scott Hofer, dons costumes - including an endless floral muumuu - so absurd her appearance on stage alone brought waves of laughter. Her three children, Jody, Stanley and Charlene suffer from a myriad of problems, the least being the stray dogs, now numbering eight, that seem to follow Jody home on a regular basis. It's all Bertha can do to stay sane. Charlene, so wonderfully played by Tony Butera, is an awkward, slightly overweight high school senior whose world is collapsing because she didn't make cheerleader. She asks her mom what else is there to live for if you can't be a cheerleader, and after long pause Bertha answers "I can't think of anything right now, but when I do I'll write it down and give it to you." Bertha truly does want what's best for her children, so in her spare time she works for the Smut Snatchers, campaigning to rid the high school library of inappropriate literature. Topping the list of books they are trying to ban is Roots, because, according to Bertha, "it only shows one side of the slavery issue." The other order of business for the Smut Snatchers is to rid the dictionary of words they believe have "questionable value."

The comedy of errors continues, and these actors keep up the comedic timing and incredibly fast pace with the utmost of talent and professionalism. Each scene is akin to a Saturday Night Live sketch, and these actors are so convincing in their roles, that one almost forgets it's the same two guys in each scene. The costumes alone could keep the audience in stitches. Leonard Childers, the owner of OKKK, captured Tuna's fashion sensibility when he arrived on stage with his shocking white pompadour, donning white shiny leather shoes, brown polyester pants and a wonderfully detailed western style jacket complete with fringe trim. Other memorable characters were Hofer's Rev. Childers, a white cross between Al Sharpton and Don King, and Butera's hilarious Vera Carp, not unlike Saturday Night Live's church lady, but less pious.

These God fearing, Jerry Springer-viewing, NRA supporting, KKK loving halfwits bumble through life in Tuna none the wiser. So ignorant are these folks that they can almost be forgiven for their ineptness. The fact that they simply don't know any better makes the deadpan delivery of the many one liners all the more effective. And as the day comes to an end, and we watch the townspeople say their prayers, Bertha Bumiller really sums it up when she prays, "God, I've already bought the gun, please give me the strength not to buy the bullets."

Greater Tuna is a delightfully witty, extremely entertaining production. The Oak Hill Production Company will be here through May 27. For information and performance times, please call the Guild Hall box office at 631-324-4050.

Those who visited the old Herter Estate known as The Creeks in East Hampton when it was owned by artist Alfonso Ossorio will recall Ossorio's twenty year project of transforming his estate into a world class conifer arboretum and sculpture park. For those who never had the privilege of seeing it, there will be an exhibition of photographs taken in 1990 of the park. Also at the exhibition will be his water colors from the 1930's. It's a private showing by appointment only beginning June 1, telephone, 631-287-2020.

Universal Home Video will issue this summer a twenty-fifth anniversary collectors edition CD of East Hampton's Steven Spielberg's seminal 1975 hit film Jaws. It will include much from the cutting room floor and several deleted scenes. Jaws star Roy Scheider is also a Hamptontite living nearby in a home in Sagaponack with his wife Brenda.

Newswoman Polly Kreisman, a fourteen time winner of the New York Emmy Award has been, hired by WPIX Channel 11 as lead reporter for a new investigative unit. The unit will contribute segments to the WB11 News at Ten, the station's prime time news program.

Julie Chen, news anchor for CBS News Early Show and CBS Morning News, will be the keynote speaker at the Long Island Coalition for Fair Broadcasting's Annual Folio Awards this Friday at the Crest Hollow Country Club in Woodbury. Dan Rattiner, Editor and Publisher of this newspaper, was given a Lifetime Achievement Award at last year's event.

The Fourth Annual East End Heart Ball and Wine Auction will take place this Saturday at the Westhampton Country Club. It's black tie and awards will be presented to Ria DelBen of Westhampton and Dr. Irving Krukemkamp who heads the heart surgery unit at University Hospital Hospital in Stony Brook.

The largest contributor of what is known as soft money to the Giuliani for Senate campaign has been revealed to be Ira Rennert, who's RENCO Group, Inc. gave $100,000 to the Giuliani Victory Committee. Rennert is in the process of building a 100,000 square foot beachfront mansion in Sagaponack. Second largest donors were Thomas Macenerny, a partner in the large buyout firm of Welch, Carson, Anderson and Stowe and Marvin Schwartz, a partner at Newberger and Birman; they both gave $50,000.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO
"The End of the Real Thing"
 May 1, 1985

Last Tuesday, both the President and the Chairman of the Board of Coca Cola flew to New York City to hold a press conference. The traditional ninety nine year old formula would be abandoned. It would be kept in a safe in the main office in Atlanta, under lock and key and it would never be used again. In its place, there would be a NEW formula for Coca Cola that would be sweeter, sharper and, if they did say so themselves, much better. Two hundred thousand people had compared it to the old formula and a vast majority of them had favored it. This new formula would make everybody happy.

Certainly it made Pepsi Cola happy. They held a huge outdoor party at Manhattan's Columbus Circle at 59th Street and 7th Avenue, and as the press conference was going on, they had clowns, jugglers, bands, balloons, and lots and lots of free Pepsi for all passersby.

"It gives me great pleasure to offer each of you my heartiest congratulations," wrote Roger Enrico, President of Pepsi-Cola to all Pepsi-Cola personnel in a full page ad in The New York Times. "After... years of going at it eyeball to eyeball, the other guy just blinked... There is no question the long-term market success of Pepsi has forced this move. Everyone knows when something is right it doesn't need changing. Maybe they finally realized what most of us have known for years... Pepsi tastes better than Coke. Well, people in trouble tend to do desperate things... and we'll have to keep our eye on them. But for now, I say victory is sweet, and we have earned a celebration. We're going to declare a holiday on Friday. Enjoy!"

* * *

Well, there's one person who is not happy about all of this and that is me. I don't care if the new Coke tastes a million times better than the old Coke. The old Coke is not just a drink. It is part of my life. It is part of all our lives. How can they do such a thing?

Here is what Coke means to me:

It means being twenty years old and sitting in the back seat of a car in the parking lot of the library at the University of Rochester with this girl and, between sips, hugging and kissing.

It means sitting underneath a waterfall on the Canary Island of Tenerife and, after a three hour climb up something called the Baranco de Fuego, sitting down on a rock, zipping open a backpack and chugging the entire thing down in about three gulps.

It means, just two weeks ago, sitting in a grove at Little Albert's Landing along with twenty other people and eating hamburgers, potato chips, cole slaw and s'mores (graham crackers, marshmallows and Hershey's chocolate). The Coke was ice cold out of a cooler.

What I'm told is that there are all these people in the executive offices of Coca-Cola down in Atlanta running around tearing their hair out because Coca-Cola has lost a percentage point here and a percentage point there to Pepsi and that is why they made this change.

This reasoning stinks. They made Tab and they made Diet Coke and if they wanted to put out something with a different formula for people to try then they could have put out Coke2.

Losing Coke, for me, anyway, is a bit like losing apple pie or pizza. My immediate instinct was to run down to the deli and buy cases and cases of the stuff to put away so we can have Coke parties from time to time in the years to come. But then I was told that the shelf life of Coke is only three months or so after which it loses its fizz. So what's the point to that?

The real need now is to find some religious fanatic willing to die who we can get to drive into the Atlanta headquarters where the safe is kept, blow the place up and come out with the formula.

Then Coca-Cola can have Coca-Cola.

And some enterprising bottler will still have the Real Thing.

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of a New Islander #104 Are You Game?

Are you a gamer? I am. I love games, board games, card games, any games at all practically. I have a book of logic problems and cryptograms in my car at all times.

I love Trivial Pursuit, but my family and friends won't play with me unless I give them a two-pie handicap. Pictionary is without question the best game for a small party. While playing this game, a natural blonde friend of mine, named Mary Dumont, had to draw a picture of "communism," so she drew one of the flying monkeys from the Wizard of Oz. Listening to her free associate from communism to flying monkeys was worth the price of admission.

Scrabble is still fun and a terrific learning tool with kids. My favorite version of Scrabble is the adult No-holds-barred version, where you can spell phonetically, colloquially and obscenely. It makes the gaam hysterikaly funi!

I still enjoy the classics; Parcheesi, Chess and Go. I have yet to learn Backgammon and Mah-Jong. I especially love games that are pretty to look at, a feast for the eyes and the mind.

I have my computer stocked with games. The best game ever was a Macintosh game called The Fools Errand by Cliff Johnson. If any one has a color version, call me.

But there's one game, just one, that I dislike. Monopoly.

Monopoly annoys me. It's a pretty game, but it's monotonous. First of all, the charms are outdated. Who wants to be a cannon or a wheelbarrow? People get so attached to a particular charm that they won't play unless they get to use that piece. My daughter always has to be the dog. My brother always has to be the hat. I always have to be the thimble. Why? I don't know. I sew, so I have to be the thimble, its just that thimble.

It starts out sweetly enough. Everyone has money and is nice to each other. We go to jail, we laugh, we get knocked up by Opportunity. Then, once we have a monopoly, we start building houses and stripping the other players of cash. The laissez-faire people who keep their money in one stack annoy the anal retentives who neatly line their's up by denomination. Everyone gets upset when someone knocks the board and those stupid little houses go flying.

Here's where everyone's true colors come out. The conservatives go for the throat. Buying houses and hotels and cheering as the other players mortgage their properties to pay the rent. The liberals can't stand to ruin another player, so they extends loans and credits. This angers the conservative capitalists because loans aren't covered in the friggin' rule book, which they have memorized. The socialists tell the capitalists to lighten up, it's only until the other players get on his or her feet again.

Suddenly you notice that the game has gotten way too serious. My mother gets flustered trying to keep track of the money. My step-father thinks all property is jointly owned, so why should he pay rent if he lands on mother's property? My brother Joey is one of those capitalist, anal-retentive players.

He can't wait to break his opponents. He still lives at home and thinks Monopoly is an accurate reflection of life, but not his of course. I give loans to other players, cause I know what it's like to be down to your last dollar and I can't stand to drive another player off the deep end of the board. Once, my brother David, who was broke in Monopoly money, started playing with his own real money – and we let him! My daughter keeps the game going by adding money to people's piles when they're in the restroom. People get too absorbed in this game and it stops being fun.

Another problem with Monopoly is it takes too long to play. I get very bored by the fifth hour. At some point, you just stop, because you have to go to work or do the dishes or study ancient Greek or anything to get away from that stupid game! I have never played a game of Monopoly to the end.

The new Monopoly handbook has some suggestions for shortening the game. I have a few as well:

1. Announce that a canister of nerve gas just broke in your kitchen.
2. Announce an armored car just turned over in front of your house and money is blowing all over the street.

elaine k.g. benson, her daughter's column

Along Scuttlehole Road and Lumber Lane there is a lot of black pipe. I'm told they are putting in a new fiber optic line for cable. Cable-net, I hear, is faster than the telephone variety. Cable prices have increased noticeably and it looks like progress is being made (perhaps at our expense).

I have friends who live around the corner. They picked me up the other evening and they posed a good question. Why can't "they" bury the electric lines and phone lines as well? I don't know. I imagine it has to do with the cost involved. It would seem to make sense even though I understand it costs about twice as much to install underground lines. However just because the cable-company has a ditch open doesn't mean that they can cooperate with two other companies to improve the landscape. That would take some pretty interesting organization.

The cost of repairing electric lines after the windstorms and hurricanes can't be cheap. I see road crews cutting back trees along the highway and have even seen a fire start from the combination of electric lines and trees. Pruning fast growing trees is a full time job and the trees end up looking almost deformed. I also can't help but think about all the trees that have been cut so that we can live with telephone poles as far as the eye can see. The landscape would be so improved with less telephone poles and more trees. Imposing a law that requires all electric lines to be buried sound like a good idea. Town government is sitting on a lot of money that was collected to protect and preserve open space. I know the focus is on land purchase. I'm not suggesting that we take this money and put it into the hands of LIPA. I'm simply suggesting that we can improve our feeling of open space with a little vision.

In Mexico, I am told we have a fiber-optic phone line. There are microwave repeaters and no phone polls in some areas. I don't understand how these microwave repeaters relate to the kind we have in our kitchens. I'm sure it has to do with waveforms but somehow I like the image of a giant microwave oven. The phone reception is perfect. It seems better than our current system.

The environment poses so many questions that I could go on forever listing them. I want to understand more about electric cars and the possibility of fuel cells as an alternative to burning fossil fuels. Cost is a factor but it seems that technology is catching up and there are some solutions in sight. Anyone who can help us understand should be in touch. We all can stand a little more information. I, for one, believe there is hope for the future.

-Kimberly Goff

And we're not talking about local writers here, we're talking about the Kurt Vonneguts, Peter Matthiessen, George Plimptons, Terrance McNallys, Edward Albees, and Spalding Grays of the world. Almost none of this was here fifteen years ago.

Dan's Papers has been even asked to co-sponsor a Hamptons Comedy Festival this August. Maybe they'll even lure Seinfeld out of his $40 million dollar digs.

I've traveled over much of the world and I would compare my experiences to just about anyone's. I've been to Japan, New Zealand, Hawaii, Guatemala, Mexico, Cuba, Haiti, Spain, Italy, Turkey, Greece, Fiji, England and even the old Soviet Union. I've lived four months in the South of France, lived four months in the Canary Islands and four months in the Virgin Islands. Hawaii stands out as the most colorful place I have ever been. Turkey the most historic, Cuba the strangest. Here in the United States I've been to the lumber towns of Northern California, Hot Springs and Little Rock, Arkansas, Charleston, South Carolina, Boothbay Bar Harbor, Maine, Taos, New Mexico, Natchez, Mississippi, Grand Forks, North Dakota and hundreds of other places. But for the combination of sophistication, subtle natural beauty, spectacular beaches, and remarkable diversity, I have never found anything to measure up to the Hamptons.

punishment. Her compassion is equaled by her courage. She is the spokeswoman for the silent poor, the champion of healing and respect for our

She tells it how she sees it, in plain and passionate language. "We move to their level and we kill because they kill. Think of what could be done for life. It's a matter of consciousness."

The service resumed after the lecture and Sister Helen Prejean was presented with an award by Sister Peggy Tully. The lecture hall was filled to capacity and a very large audience later lined up and joined Sister Prejean where she was signing copies of her book Dead Man Walking.

House Falls In Water Mill

During the last few years, the local authorities have been toying with the idea of calming down the traffic to make it go slower. One could put in traffic circles, or big planters in the middle of the road, one could narrow the lanes of the road, put in cross walks or speed bumps. It was an amazing thing to see this thinking because it contrasted sharply of what had come before, which was to widen everything so that the people could get out here faster.

Well, last Wednesday just after midnight, the local authorities probably came up with the ultimate in traffic calming. An entire house being moved by a truck slid off its bed and crashed onto the eastbound lane of the Montauk Highway in Water Mill. The house was so large, it blocked traffic in both directions and part of it even broke through the guardrail and threatened to tip over into Mecox Bay. The trucker was a man named John B. Johnson of Unityville, Pennsylvania driving a 1991 Mack Truck. He worked for Bennett Trucking in McDonough, Georgia and he had picked up this house in Pennsylvania and was delivering it to East Hampton. He came down into Water Mill on the highway past Cobbs Road, and got to the place where there's a small curve in the road going to the left. Johnson turned left; the house behind him went straight.

Needless to say, having a big house on the road in the middle of Water Mill, threatening to cancel the entire weekend of tourists who would be coming out on this one road heading into town, was greeted with mixed emotion that morning. It was of course at that hour, still there, although efforts were underway by every imaginable authority you could think of to get it moved. Someone said they counted more than forty flashing red lights on the scene. The traffic was being re-routed through the back roads and back woods, over hill and dale, to Grandmother's house. Had the problem persisted indefinitely of course, everyone east of here would have died of starvation. But, fortunately the house got chopped up and taken to the dump around two o'clock in the afternoon, just before the hordes of visitors began driving out from the city. From here it's a problem for the insurance companies.

Houses often get moved around out here in the Hamptons. There are two firms currently that do most of that kind of work, and they are busy all the time. People don't like living in one place; they move their houses over to another. People buy a neighbor's house, have the house sold and moved off and make a bigger yard. The towns have laws about when you can move a house and in East Hampton it means in the middle of the night, which is why they were in Water Mill at 2 a.m. I found a spokesperson down in Georgia with the big Bennett Company that contracted the moving and he told me they move around three thousand houses a month around the country, mostly brand new ones and about once or twice a year this happens.

Steinbeck Award At Benson Gallery

Kimberly Goff, manager of the Elaine Benson Gallery in Bridgehampton, will present East Hampton author Dava Sobel with the Twelfth Annual John Steinbeck Award for "Contributions to literature and humanity by an East End writer." Ms. Sobel is the author of two bestsellers, Longitude and Galileo's Daughter. Also on hand will be literally scores of writers who have published a book in the past year - Shana Alexander, Robert Dash, Peter Matthiessen, Joe Pintauro, Blanche Wiesen Cook, Betty Freidan, Bijou LeTord and Steven Gaines. The event takes place from 4-8 p.m. John Steinbeck's widow, Elaine, is co-chair (along with Kimberly Goff) of the Project Steering Committee.

LTV Soundstage Opens

Public access station LTV in East Hampton opened its 28,000 square foot soundstage, Pinewood West on May first. In terms of height, Pinewood West is the tallest soundstage in the state. Alec Baldwin hosted a dedication ceremony for the soundstage, which LTV hopes will be much utilized for shooting films, television and commercials. Baldwin, in fact, is scheduled to direct and star in the soundstage's first production, The Devil and Daniel Webster which will begin filming shortly.

FREQUENCY

The premiere of the much anticipated movie Frequency was held at the Ziegfeld Theater in Manhattan this week. It was to be a kind of going Back To The Future having a Sixth Sense on the Field of Dreams. It appears that cast, writers and director were all on the same frequency. While the audience was unusually star-studded, those who received plenty of attention were the firemen who were loudly cheering their own characters in the movie. This sci-fi mystery is set in Queens, partially in 1969 when the Mets were baseball champions (some of those Mets in attendance) and in the present, where a fireman dad and his detective son communicate over time and a ham radio. New Line executives gave a check to the Firemen's Widows and Orphans Fund prior to the movie. After the film a party was held at the new, trendy and massive restaurant, Gaustavinos, which sits under the 59th Street Bridge. Most celebrities were able to roam the restaurant but I watched the Puff-less Jennifer Lopez get cordoned off by her friends as several gossip columnists tried to get the skinny from this curvy actress-singer.

LOCAL SUPPORT FOR WILDLIFE

The stars and their supporters shined before sunset last Fri. April 28 in Sag Harbor. There was private screening of Kim Basinger's new film I dreamed of Africa. The film is a true epic. Kim took her family with her for the production of the film and spoke before the screening of her experiences and the challenges her fellow cast members and crew endured. There were two private parties in Sag Harbor afterwards. The event raised funds for the Wildlife Rescue Center of the Hamptons which is opening the first Hospital for wildlife on Eastern Long Island.

"MOMA 2000 MAKING/CHOICES"

A reception was held at the Museum of Modern Art to celebrate making /choices, a cycle of 24 exhibitions that focus on the years between 1920 & 1960. A paper arch designed by Shigeru Ban & Assoc. Architect Dean Maltz who built the Sloane residence in East Hampton's Grace Estate showed how a 30 foot structure that spans 87 feet made entirely out of recycled paper defies any notion of fragility. Ban has described paper as evolved wood. All 24 distinct exhibitions were drawn from the collection of Moma. A Must See.

The Seamester Sailors

If you were lucky enough to be on the town docks in Greenport this past Sunday morning you would have seen something unusual, forty-three young people trudging toward town looking exhausted, some lugging large duffle bags, some wearing enormous back packs, and all just bursting with tales of adventure. For nine weeks these college students from Long Island University had lived, studied, and traveled on the Harvey Gamage and the Spirit of Massachusetts, both two-masted gaff-rigged schooners.

They each earned a semester worth of college credit taking classes on board in marine sciences, humanities, and seamanship. According to the Captain and Marine Supervisor of the Harvey Gamage, D.B. Smith, they sailed 4000 miles through the Caribbean returning to Greenport on the North Fork of Long Island. Most of these young people had never sailed before, but under the very capable direction of the crew and professors on board, and in spite of the rigorous physical challenges, they all took their turns standing watch, trimming the sails, raising and lowering the main, and performing all the tasks needed to sail a 131 foot ship.

Kelly Fisher, from Buffalo, New York, a Junior at Long Island University, who had never been on a boat before, said that she prepared for the rigors of the adventure by working out in a gym. Her favorite stop was on the remote Island of East Plana Cay, where they read poems and prepared a dinner on the beach, then hunted Huitia, a small rodent that according to Kelly sort of looks like a bunny. Of course, they just hunted them with flash lights, making sure that they adhered to the strict environmental lessons learned on board ship. According to Kelly, "we hit two or three storms, always on my watch, kind of scary, we had to drop the main sail, I got thrown down to the deck and under water one time, but it was exhilarating and we had a great time and everyone takes something special away."

Tracy DeMeola, also a student, said that the only boat she had been on before was a ferry. She also had never been away from her family before, and was initially concerned that she would be seasick, but no one was sick. They all met the challenges learning to haul lines, and trim the sails. Tracy said about the program, "you have to be a strong student, you are on watch, then you have to take classes and study, make sure you get enough sleep. It is very mentally and physically challenging." They learned the pride of team accomplishment, furling a better sail, and trimming the sails for optimum speed. Her favorite stop was Cuba. "The people were very friendly and interesting." Tracy was impressed by the average Cuban's deep knowledge of their history and culture and she learned to Salsa.

The Harvey Gamage Foundation's next adventure organized by Burt Rogers begins in May. According to Burt, the Island Kids Program, lead by the Shelter Island Education Foundation, will be gathering students from the various area island high schools; Shelter Island, Fisher's Island, Block Island, for a program centered on the history of whaling. Burt Rogers pointed out that, "this is a great way to bring together kids from fairly isolated island communities to share ideas, make new friends, and build team skills, while they learn about the culture and history unique to their area." For further information about the programs, the Harvey Gamage Foundation, a non-profit educational organization can be reached at 1-800-724-SAIL. -Pam Gibson

Shop'til You Drop.....With Maria Tennariello

This was a weekend to be gardening and spring house cleaning, but for me, I can't resist a good shopping spree. So off I go, come shop with me.

Looking high and low for a carpet sale? I found a great one for you. You can save up to 75% on the best brands, colors and styles, all at low prices. There are plushes, saxones, berbers, patterns, multi-colors, and sculptures, textures and much more. Where? Carpet One Of The Hamptons on County Road 39 in Southampton. Sorry, no remnants available here.

Nearby, Windows & Walls Unlimited is having a up to 60% off sale on Duette, Honeycomb shades, Country Woods, Wood Blinds, Lightlines, Mini Blinds and they can motorize anything on new installations. Also, look for their custom drapery, their specialty. Styles like beautiful swags and valances, Roman and balloon shades, slip covers, cushions. Call Linda and Paul at 287-1515.

If you are heading up or down Main Street, stop in and say hi to Penny at Old Town Crossing. They are expecting a brand new shipment from England and France any minute now. This shipment will include exquisite antique furniture, comfortable pieces that are ready to grace your home and accessories, hostess and corporate gifts. Old Town Crossing also offers design fabric and home furnishings with a design staff always available to offer their professional advice. Interior designer prices and photographs are also available upon request. Ah ha, another shop open seven days a week. Stop in and say hi to Penny.

Another new store on Jobs Lane in Southampton. Yikes, I'm running out of room in my diary. Offshore Surf & Sport has already had their grand opening for spring 2000. Gearing up for the spring and summer season, Offshore will offer many products and activities in the water sport industry. They have men's, women's and junior's apparel, swimwear and eyewear and carry a variety of hard goods such as surfboards, kayaks, body boards, wakeboards and all types of beach accessories. Offshore will also display and sell paintings and photographs from local artists, which is a plus in my book. Their extensive rental program will include ocean kayaks, touring kayaks, surfboards and more. From May until October look for their instructional kayak tours each weekend along with both private and group surf lessons, and an offering of certified swim instruction for all age groups. Call Gene and Kelly at 287-2979 for information.

Southampton's Second Nature Markets, the natural organic and health specialists have moved just across the street on May 1. Located now at 70 Main Street, they are bigger and better than ever. Also located on Newtown Lane in East Hampton.

Planting yet? Marders on Snake Hollow Road in Bridgehampton will show you how to start or refresh your flower gardens. Stop in and see their new perennials and annuals and there are over 1500 varieties to choose from.

Treasure Island here I come! Located in the Wainscott Village Center on Montauk Highway in East Hampton, there are two shopping levels filled with the finest brands and best prices. If you are into craft projects, they have arts and crafts and a wonder silk flower department too! Open seven days a week, my kind of store.

Ah... Spring has finally sprung. Sag Harbor was the place to be this week, the town was busy and people were milling about. I heard that the Long Wharf Video Store will be closing on May 15, so off I went to see what was going on there. Yes, all you video fans, Long Wharf Video is selling every single video in the store at a bargain price of $3, $5, and $7. Everything must go movies, games and DVD's. You can complete your video library without spending a ton of money. Call for information, 725-9090.

Nearby at The Style Bar on Bay Street, I stopped in just to see what was going on. Almost ready to open their doors, I was in total amazement! The Spa is like a fantasyland, beauty treatment rooms that are decorated with hand painted murals of dolphins, clouds, flowers. By the way, the murals were done by Keri Wilson of Co-Creations Custom Painting, the artist that has done some murals for us at Dan's Papers. Keri specializes in wall techniques, Trompe L'Oil, children's nurseries, house and pet portraits. The building consists of two floors; the treatment rooms that include a tile bath/shower are upstairs and totally private and secluded. The reception area is painted a sunny yellow, with high vaulted ceilings that makes the space light, bright and airy. Ira and Perri, are the creators and owners of this new spa that does everything for you except rock you to sleep. Can't wait to see the finished product and get my special full day of beauty at this new and delicious spa. I will keep you posted on the Style Bar's progress. Call 725-6730 for info. Stay tuned.

Speaking of spas and getting away from it all, East

Coast Adventure Tour Company, located in Amagansett, has announced the grand opening of their Sag Harbor Store on Noyac Road, next door to the Inn at Mill Creek restaurant, opposite Trout Pond. ECATC now sells Dagger, Islander and Northwest recreational, touring and sit-on-top kayaks and Harmony and MTI accessories. They offer high quality at low prices and are well known for their exciting kayak eco-tours, clambake tours and rentals from Amagansett to Southampton. Tours are designed for individuals and families with or without kayaking experience and start at only $40 per person. Children under thirteen can tour at half price. Rental rates start at $13 per hour and kayak lessons are also available. Open weekends until May 15, with a full schedule after that, six days a week. I'll need a lesson or two, then off I go! Call for information 725-4712.

A quick Mother's Day tip: A Spa-Teddy-Gram for "A Day Of Beauty" at Gurney's Inn and International Spa, Kneipp massage and bath oils, and a beautiful floral gift from the famous Antonio's Flowers. Call Gurney's Inn at 668-2345.

Off the beaten path and hot off the press, look for the village of Great Neck Crafts Fair on Sunday, May 7 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Hicks Lane. There will be 250 quality exhibits representing the ultimate in handcrafted pottery, stained glass, jewelry, fiber, wood, metal, art, leather and other unique items and merchandise. With Mother's Day, graduations, and special occasions right around the corner, this is the perfect place to shop for that special something for that special person. Also, there will be clowns, popular characters, stilt walkers, music, food and other festivities to entertain you while you shop. For further information call 681-1176.

Well, it's time to get home, walk Tino along the beautiful Long Beach and put my feet up and say, AH! What a way to end a beautiful day. Love it!

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

Q. Where can I find a refinishing and repair establishment to help me restore and repair my outdoor furniture. I also need all new seat coverings for the chaise lounges and chairs. —A.B., Sag Harbor

A. I wonder why you would want to repair and restore, but then again if it's an expensive set and is both comfortable and attractive, I can understand it. I found Long Island Outdoor Furniture Refinishing & Repairs that does exactly that and more. They refinish, replace mesh slings, apply powder coatings, custom cushions and umbrellas, sandblast and more. When you get your set back, it should be in "Factory Fresh" condition. Call them at 631-563-8107 for information and service schedule. —MT

Getting Married on Nantucket!

So... you and your sweetheart have taken a romantic getaway to Nantucket Island. The weather is wonderful; there's a full moon; everyone who sees your smiles and knows that they're looking at a couple in love.

"Let's get married now!" says your significant other. "Why wait and do the big formal thing? We know we're meant for each other, and what more dreamy place to say 'I do'?"

Swept off your feet, both of you. You decide to shop for rings, and voila! You find two matching wedding bands and then celebrate by having lunch in one of the island's great restaurants. Afterward, you decide to go your separate ways for exactly one hour to buy something special and Nantuckety for each other. That'll be easy, with so many shops within walking distance.

You meet on the steps of the Pacific National Bank at 3 p.m. and hug, laden down with wrapped packages. "Well, we're ready - let's do it!" you say. "We're getting married!" says your intended.

Now? How?!!

Silly people, bet you thought you could just amble up to one of the island's beautiful churches and ask the minister to do the deed.

First you have to get a license. Hurry up, because the Town Clerk's office is open from 8 to 4, Monday to Friday. No exceptions, says the Town Clerk who, with her assistant, helps nuptial-inclined couples get the deed done, or at least get the license to get the deed done. According to the Clerk, a lot of people try to get her to make exceptions, saying things like, "Would you just stay open an extra hour? Our plane doesn't get in until..." or "PLEASE just open up for fifteen minutes on Saturday morning - it would mean so much." No dice.

Actually, you can file for a marriage license anywhere in Massachusetts for a Nantucket wedding; it'll be valid for sixty days. There's a $15 filing fee at the Town Clerk's office. (The state requires $4 but cities and towns in Massachusetts can set their own fees, and Nantucket's has stipulated $15 - that's $7.50 each, if you want to start things off on an equal footing.)

The license is not all you need, though - you'll also have to have a medical certificate, and this is only good for thirty days. Several years ago a thoroughly frustrated bridegroom found that the medical certificate of his bride-to-be had just expired... and the wedding was the next day. He actually backed our brave Clerk into a corner, demanding she fix things right now so the wedding could take place as scheduled. The sheriff had to be summoned, and he escorted the couple out and calmed them down. Was there a happy ending? Yes. An understanding physician at Cottage Hospital did the blood tests and got the labwork completed so the couple could get married on schedule. Doesn't seem like an auspicious way to start a marriage... here the Town Clerk's advice is sound: Plan ahead!

If you make the big decision on the island and you only have a few days, you'd better give the medical personnel at Nantucket's Cottage Hospital some lead time; usually labwork is only done once a week here. Perhaps you could cross the waters again briefly to do that on the mainland.

Paperwork in hand, it's then up to you to decide the wheres and whens. Once again, some preplanning is good; like it or not, not every man or woman of the cloth on Nantucket is free to do your ceremony at your whim. Nor are the five local Justices of the Peace.

So you see, getting married on Nantucket Island isn't without its challenges. But then, neither is marriage, or for that matter, life. When you get the Big Idea, perhaps a few days or a week or two will allow you to have your romantic spontaneity rewarded with a flawless and meaningful wedding. -Nancy Owen against a stiff offshore breeze. Of course, the predominant wind direction on Nantucket in the summer happens to be southwest or onshore, so even though it can make for sloppy conditions often times you have to go for it. As a general rule, winds are lighter in the early mornings, and they often come onshore in the afternoon, hence the reason for the early morning surf check ritual.

Once you master how to stand up on a wave, each subsequent time will add to your experience and agility. Before long you will be able to judge when the waves are getting ready to break, and whether to take off on a "left" or "right" ride. Of course, when there are other people in the water, you must be cognizant of their position, and follow basic surfing etiquette. This includes the cardinal rule of never "dropping in" or trying to catch a wave, somebody is already riding. This can lead to collisions and even injuries, so unless you can steer clear of the other person, wait for the next wave to get yours.

Big waves sometimes come in sets of seven, so if you see a big one towering down on you, either go for it, or paddle like crazy to get outside to catch the next one. One thing to try to avoid is to get caught "inside" where the maelstrom of white water, can be chaotic and often disorienting. If you know you won't make it past the crest of a breaking wave, then use the "duck diving" technique to go under it, or if nothing else dive to the bottom, but cover your head with your hands to avoid being hit by your board. Be extremely careful in a crowded lineup, not to let your board fly around as it can hit someone else, besides yourself.

Even seasoned surfers sometimes "wipe out," and things like "going over the falls" are all part of the experience. Just try to learn from each mistake, and next time you might find yourself flying along the tube of a perfect wave.

As surfing has grown in popularity on Nantucket, it inevitably has led to congested lineups, and long waits in between rides, as everybody gets their change. In a way, summertime surfing on Nantucket is getting like the downtown traffic in the summer. But autumn is just around the corner. -Ken Kelley

WHEN IN NEW YORK

Bike New York

One of my daughters, Jennifer's, favorite sports event is one she participates in each year. It is the Bike New York, Great Five Boro Tour. Joining over thirty thousand cyclists, she rides through Queens, Manhattan, Brooklyn Staten Island and the Bronx. The Bike New York Tour is produced by BNY Inc., a not for profit organization and The New York City Department of Transportation. This official NYC 2000 event will be held on May 7th and is held rain or shine.

Details:

Now in its twenty-third year, the NYC 2000 ride starts in Battery Park, Manhattan and travels on traffic-free streets through the other five boroughs. Crossing over the Verrazano Narrows Bridge, heading towards Staten Island, the dramatic views of New York's glorious skyline are breathtaking! Participants get to cycle over bridges, along waterfronts, onto highways, into neighborhoods and business districts and through parks. Part of the fun, Jen relates, is being cheered on by the residents and storeowners, as hundreds of cyclists ride through their neighborhoods.

There are five rest stops on the Tour that gives riders a chance to rest, refill water bottles and rejoin families and friends at reunion tents. Riders are usually treated to complimentary give-aways and this year is no exception. Energy can be replenished with Bonita Bananas and oranges, as well as with other goodies, courtesy of Saturn. My daughter always packs a throwaway camera to take some fantastic shots of the scenery and of her friends as they ride through the tour and meet up at previously planned rest spots.

At the end of the tour there is a Festival at Fort Wadsworth in Gateway National Recreation Area on Staten Island. Lunch is available for purchase, along with BIKE NEW YORK 2000 T-shirts. Live music and dancing to the sound of the Sensational Soul Cruisers will be held on the Festival Stage. Riders and guests get to sail back to Manhattan on the Staten Island Ferry at the end of the Festival. There is also the opportunity for a free sail back on the ferry during the bike tour, if riders are too tired to make the ride back on their bikes.

Tour Rules:

As part of an important safety factor, all participants must wear a helmet. Each rider is issued a vest that should be worn during the ride. This is the rider's permit to use Bike New York services on the route and at rest stops that include portable rest rooms. All riders are also requested to exercise bicycle safety, be courteous to other riders and follow the directions of the Tour Marshals at the start area and along the tour.

Riders are requested to be ready for an early start! They must arrive at Battery Park before 7 a.m. to get a good position in the Tour Formation. On this day, bicycles will be accepted on Metro-North Railroad and Long Island Rail Road. Battery Park is easily accessible by all mass transportation. Ample free street parking is nearby. A shortened Tour route is imposed on late arriving participants or very slow riders who fall behind.

Sign Up:

The cost to enter this event is $40 on the day of the event. Registration time is between 6:45 a.m. and 7:45 a.m. on May 7th at Battery Park. Children age fourteen and under is $10 and must be received with an adult registration. Advance registration before April 28th, is $32. You can FAX registration twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week to 718 855-2136 (All FAX registrations must include credit card number and valid signature. All entrants receive a free Jersey with the event and date printed on it. For registration questions call 212-932-BIKE (2453). Volunteers are needed for this massive event and you can find out more about what is needed by calling the Volunteer Desk at 212 932-2300 Ext. 120. Good cyclists can be Marshals and work on their bikes to direct traffic and keep the Tour rolling. The Tour Corps operate the rest stops, work at the Festival or help out in the Tour production office. All volunteers receive a complimentary special event T-shirt, cycling cap and lunch on Tour day. For more information, visit their website at <http://www.bikenewyork.org>

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"PERSONAL SPACE" AND "A CONNECTICUT PLACE" AT THE PARRISH

Continuing with our "Sunday in Southampton With Art" foray, our next stop last week (after the Gayle Willson Gallery) was the Parrish Art Museum's landscape show. The subject of landscape is no big deal in the Hamptons, but this exhibit takes liberty with the concept, featuring two separate but related presentations. The first one showcases Julian Alden Weir's Connecticut farm and the friends (like Childe Hassam) who used it as a personal and professional retreat.

Paintings like Hassam's 1910 "Road to the Land of Nod" resembles the English countryside and is automatically a favorite in this viewer's eyes. Other works, including "Weir's Orchard" by Ryder, capture another view of the site, darker in tone but no less evocative. Pieces by Weir himself indicate a Japanese influence in their asymmetrical composition and high horizon.

Despite the diversity, there's a platonic ideal at work, reinforcing the "Back to Nature" Movement in the 1890s: landscape that is "gentle and varied... where artists possess an intimacy with and an appreciation of nature."

The second, more contemporary exhibit, often contradicts this reverence for nature as local artists convey how much our landscape has declined from the "ideal" celebrated by Weir and friends. Janet Culbertson's

Janet Culbertson: Paving America 1993

"Butterfly Bones" is a favorite (this critic having first seen it at Washington D.C.'s National Academy of Science). It is both beautiful, showing the butterflies' fragility, and brutal in the pile of dead insects. "Paving America" is a direct comment on our clogged-filled highways and an ironic comment on the bucolic country paths that were painted by Weir and associates.

Photographs of camping at Hither Hills State Park by Adam Bartos is self-explanatory, the pictures tightly cropped to eliminate the water and grass in the background. Nature has been usurped by people.

Pat Pickett's tree trunks and branches do not immediately bear a relationship to the show's theme, yet a deeper analysis reveals that her "figures" are also in isolation, disconnected to nature. On another level, the sticks are so finely articulated that they recall Lily Tomlin's various characters on TV's Laugh In. (Don't ask why; suffice it to say they are so goofy and life-like, they resemble real people, like Bill King's sculptures.)

Christa Maiwald's patterned wallpaper (which we've also seen before) is a satirical comment on environment in the Hamptons, her "landscape" being both literal and figurative. All in all, the Parrish has presented a different kind of show where two seemingly disparate time periods come together effectively.

The exhibit will be on view at Southampton's Parrish Art Museum until June 4.

HONORING THE ARTIST: Jeff Muhs

By his own admission, East End artist Jeff Muhs has become more "centered" as time goes by. Not only has he chosen a definite path to pursue in his career, but his recent paintings have literally gotten more symmetrical. "You know, we're taught in art school not to put an image right in the center of the picture," Mr. Muhs explains, standing in the middle of his studio, surveying his creative endeavors. "But as you can see, I have something in the midpoint of my seascape here."

Other paintings on the studio wall convey that same centering, vibrant clouds of various colors hovering above and below the horizon line. Mr. Muhs seems confident enough to take a risk with this new arrangement as he also says he's getting less "objective" in his style.

Mr. Muhs is also more centered in his goals: "I tell everyone, especially new artists, that you have to work harder as an artist, that persistence and hard work are what count. Art is the greys of greys of all professions," he adds with resolve. "I wish I had had someone to share this information with me ten years ago - the kind of information which I am sharing now with younger artists."

We take the statement about "art being grey" as meaning that the profession is unpredictable and ambiguous at best. Mr. Muhs agrees with this conclusion. That's why he believes he has to plan every step of the way. He points to an alcove in his studio which serves as an office. "This is my war room," he says with a grin. "I wage war here on the art world. After I create what I hope is honest and mature work, I have to research galleries who might be interested in showing it."

Research for Mr. Muhs seems meticulous, taking him to such places as Sante Fe, San Francisco, San Diego and Memphis. So far, that research has paid off, resulting in an exhibit at Memphis' Lisa Kurts Gallery. "I created a website for the first time for this show," Mr. Muhs adds. "People have responded very well."

Naturally, exhibiting outside your immediate area has some drawbacks according to Mr. Muhs. "There's the problem of shipping the art work, twenty-five canvases in this case to Memphis. Then there's the lack of control because you usually aren't there to hang the show. And if you have a problem with the dealer, you can't get into the car and go over to the gallery to settle things."

Despite these potential disadvantages, Mr. Muhs seems pleased with how things are going so far. "I'm still looking for another gallery which has the potential to do well with my work," he notes. "But I can't settle for any gallery. Finding a gallery is difficult work, but it's only hard when you're thinking how hard it is."

Sounds like good advice.

Dan's Papers "They Made The Movie Here" Film Festival 2000

Dan's Papers "They Made the Movie Here" Film Festival 2000 puts its best polished, boot-shod foot forward on Saturday, May 6th at 3 p.m. at the Ross School Library when it screens one of Steven Spielberg's most earnestly heart-felt productions, Amistad... He chose it to be the first film for his newly formed company, Dream Works. And, it was a dream movie for him, he has said, "I felt very much that I was telling everyone's story - a story that people of all nationalities and races should know..." Sounds similar to his magnificent, Schindler's List, and must have done with the same ambitious love of project that drove that film's production.

It is easy to understand Mr. Spielberg's intensity about this true story of a group of chained slaves who, with force, took control of the ship they were being transported in and arrived here on the East Coast thirty years before the Civil War and the resulting delineation of human rights here in the United States.

Amistad is less directly aimed at the heart than was Schindler's List. It is aimed also at detailed examination, contemplative reflection, and provocative education. Certainly, "Schindler's List" achieved that too, and more. However, Amistad utilizes an entirely different method... a more complex examination of legal and moral issues and, as such, continues to absorb audiences on that basis and work successfully as a teaching tool in schools. (as does Schindler's List). But, the down-hill side of the Amistad approach was the up-hill struggle to generate a smash box-office blockbuster, which is Spielberg's usual gift.

Amistad (1997) Screening Date: May 6,

Of course, he had poured his usual power of film making into Amistad and was rewarded with four Academy Award Nominations... Best Supporting Actor, Anthony Hopkins and Best Music by John Williams along with Best Costume Design and Best Cinematography. It stars Morgan Freeman, as well as Hounsou, who made a spectacular debut as the slaves' leader, Cinque. The screenplay was written by David Franzoni, from historical records. Perhaps, I should say, over-written, as the script verbalizes at great lengths the causes issues. This did not help the film's box office appeal, nor does the frequent use of the strange African language help, in spite of it's accuracy. More of the action of the drama could have been allowed to deliver the message directly to the gut and head. And, the message is a strong one.

On August 25, 1839 a battered, black painted, but crusted with barnacles, schooner, the Amistad, landed here on the East End of Long Island. Aboard were fifty-three black slaves and four children. They spoke no English but managed to ask for help to sail back to their native country, Africa. Instead the U.S. Navy seized them as renegades, having mutinied from their owners, two Cubans. What the officials didn't care to know was that the Spanish government, along with Britain, had outlawed importing slaves in 1817.

The "Amistads," as they were to be called, were taken to New London, Connecticut, where they were held on charges of murder and piracy. That began the very strange and legally complex drama. The "Amistads" became popular curiosities and the flint-stones that ignited heated controversy. Their tribulations as well as their trials became a serious national and international issue. They were as fascinating entities. Were they people or property? Amazingly, a sellout play was presented at the Bowery Theatre in New York about the "Amistads" as early as a week after they were captured. You will be deeply intrigued, too.

Added to this huge film is a short video for diversion. From the LTV Studios we have "Shoto-Kan Karate-Do" a display of the defensive art, by Matt Hindra. Reserve early because the Ross School screening room has been packed. We'll say some things about the film and welcome your comments. The discussion needs you... come to the Ross School at 18 Goodfriend Drive, off of Route 114, East Hampton by 3 PM, on May 6th.

Guy Jean de Fraumeni is the producer, writer and director of award-winning films for ABC, NBC, PBS and European feature films. He is assisted in this column by Sarah Halsey who hosts with him the Dan's Papers Film Festival.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

So much has been written about quick meals, dinner in 30 minutes and food on the run. There is such a preoccupation with speed and most often at the expense of flavor. There are times, of course, when one simply must prepare a quick meal in order to accommodate other activities. We all have to eat, don't we? Well, I hope you feel as I do, that food should look good, taste good and be good for you.

And there are several ways to accomplish this. Firstly, take a little time to select the best ingredients available, then a little more time to cook. Best of all is the leisurely time you take to enjoy your meal, with perhaps a bottle of wine.

Most fish, for instance, can be quickly cooked. Recently, after a long day traveling back and forth into Manhattan I picked up some fresh salmon steaks with a favorite recipe in mind to prepare them. I also had a compote of rhubarb in the refrigerator. The sweet tartness of the orange-flavored rhubarb balanced the salmon with an extra dimension of flavor. Salad greens with lemon-dressed slices of ripe avocado and some good crusty bread completed the meal.

I will frequently blanch a bunch of broccoli or roast a batch of beets, use what I need for a particular meal and refrigerate the rest. When briefly cooked ahead the broccoli flowerets make a delicious last minute saute with garlic, olive oil and a shot of hot pepper flakes. Roasting beets in their skin seem to bring out their sweetness, then peel, dice and saute in a bit of butter, when ready to use. Cubed or sliced beets also makes a wonderful addition to a salad.

SAUTEED SALMON STEAKS WITH SOY AND GINGER

In traditional Chinese cooking, ingredients are measured out ahead so that the cooking process moves along swiftly.

Serves 2

1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons water
2 salmon steaks, cut 3/4 inch thick
Coarse (kosher) salt
Freshly ground pepper

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 teaspoons grated ginger
1 tablespoon low-sodium soy

1. Mix cornstarch and water in a small bowl and stir to dissolve. Put the grated ginger in a small cup with the soy. Set aside on a tray near your stove top.

2. Heat the oil in a non-stick skillet. Put in the salmon steaks and saute about 3-4 minutes on each side. When done fish should be golden brown and springy to the touch. Season lightly with salt and pepper to taste. Pour the cornstarch mixture in the skillet the salmon cooked in and stir to deglaze the pan drippings. Add the ginger and soy and stir to mix until slightly thickened. Return the steaks to the skillet and spoon the sauce over to coat. Serve at once.

RHUBARB COMPOTE

A versatile and refreshing light compote to serve with fish or meat. Or, over ice cream.

1 1/2 pounds rhubarb, leaves discarded
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
Grated zest of 1 navel orange
Juice of orange

1. Rinse rhubarb stalks and cut into 1-inch pieces. Put into a heavy saucepan with the sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, orange zest and juice. Simmer over low heat until the rhubarb has broken down. Taste to adjust sweetness as necessary. Refrigerate, covered in a suitable container.

BROCCOLI SAUTE

Although broccoli is available year round it is in season from fall through spring. Look for dark green to purplish green broccoli with tightly closed compact bud clusters and avoid yellow flowerets.

Serves 4-6

1 bunch broccoli

Coarse (kosher) salt
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1-2 cloves garlic, cut into thin slivers
Pinch hot pepper flakes
Freshly ground pepper (optional)

1. Remove and discard tough part of broccoli stem. Cut into "little trees," keeping the flowerets attached to the smaller stems. Rinse vegetable thoroughly.

2. Immerse in salted boiling water just to cover, quickly cover pan and remove lid when steam starts to escape. Blanch for 1 1/2 minutes until barely tender. Drain in a colander under a spray of cool water to stop the cooking process, then transfer to a clean kitchen towel and pat dry.

3. Place two tablespoons of olive oil in a rinsed out and dry saucepan or skillet. Warm oil over moderate heat then put in the broccoli, garlic and hot pepper flakes. Stir-saute for 1-1/2-2 minutes to finish cooking and heat through. Season with salt and freshly ground pepper. Serve warm or at room temperature.

To Prepare Ahead: Follow steps 1 and 2 up to several hours ahead. Complete step 3 before serving.

NEW! TUMBLEWEEDS TEXAS BARBECUE

After closing for renovations during February and March, Tumbleweeds Texas Barbecue (174 E. Montauk Hwy., Hampton Bays, 728-0808) has reopened for business. Tumbleweeds has become a Mecca for rib loving locals and beef brisket aficionados. Look for chili, wraps, sandwiches and "platters from the pit." Everything is made on the premises – from the coleslaw to the bread pudding. Platters include coleslaw and beans and run $10.95 to $12.95. Wraps are $7.95, while sandwiches are $5.50 (add $1.45 and nab fries and coleslaw).

GEORGICA GRILL MOTHER'S DAY PRIX FIXE

The new Georgica Grill (329-9821) on the site of the former Zizzi Balooba restaurant in East Hampton celebrates Mothers Day with a special three-course prix fixe menu for $20. The dinner special will be served from 5 p.m.-10 p.m. and will include a glass of Mumm blush champagne. Choices are as follows: 1st Course – mixed green salad, lobster bisque, or grilled vegetable and goat cheese terrine, 2nd Course – choice of: sliced tenderloin of beef, potato-horseradish crusted north Atlantic salmon, grilled breast of duck, dessert choice of: ice cream, amaretto cheesecake, chocolate mousse, apple pie, Georgica Grill serves dinner from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. (closed Monday and Tuesday).

HOT LUNCHES TO GO AT THE RED HORSE MARKET

Jerry & David's Red Horse Market (329-6655) is now offering hot lunches to go daily. The menu will change daily but here are a few samples: BBQ chicken, Ribs and Herb Roasted Chicken.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Presidential Tastes At Turtle Crossing

Owners Nancy and Stanley Singer have put this unassuming East Hampton BBQ joint on the map by offering mouth-watering Southwestern BBQ that's so authentic – it could make a Texan cry. Named "the best BBQ on Long Island" by Richard Scholem of The New York Times, Turtle Crossing's (221 Pantigo Road, East Hampton, NY 631-324-7166) finger licking fare has won a devoted following both locally and nationally. In fact, when the president and Mrs. Clinton visited the East End for a weekend of fund-raising in 1998, Turtle Crossing was the only restaurant at which they and their entire entourage dined.

Turtle Crossing obviously made an impression on the first couple, and they were selected to prepare their trademark BBQ fare again for a fund-raiser during the President's follow-up visit in the summer of '99. They dished out old-fashioned hardwood smoked ribs (President Clinton's personal fave), chicken, chili, and cornbread to a hungry crowd of Clinton friends that included Billy Joel, Chevy Chase, Martha Stewart, Lorraine Bracco and Phoebe Snow.

Still need to be convinced that this is the real deal? Here's some ink from the Turtle Crossing "Wall of Fame": according to Newsday's Joan Reminick, Turtle Crossing's menu "positively smokes." In 1997, Turtle Crossing's hardwood smoked ribs were named a "Taste Memory" in Gourmet magazine. The following year, Gourmet gushed, "the ribs and collard greens are so authentic, you might imagine you've discovered some perfect roadside joint in Georgia." And Sheldon Landwehr of the New York Post declared Turtle Crossing, the supreme BBQ-Mecca for racks of smokey ribs.

Of course, owner Stanley Singer can't reveal all the secrets behind his succulent success. No legendary BBQ baron would, but he will provide a glimpse of the behind-the-scenes action. Let's just say a special commercial smoker stoked with just the right combo of wood at a specific temperature has a lot to do with it. And then there's the customized sauce and dry rub he skillfully applies at crucial points during the preparation process.

Whether its roasted chicken, brisket, pulled pork, ribs, barbecued duck or char-grilled corn, Turtle Crossing will satisfy the most die-hard BBQ aficionado every time. But Turtle's menu aims to please all palates. There are lighter selections and dishes with Asian flair like the Samurai salmon wrap and grilled Thai glazed chicken wonton salad. And Turtle Crossing also offers outstanding seafood fare.

Look for dishes like blue cornmeal crusted oysters, grilled tuna steak 'escabeche' taco, and even a BBQ shrimp taco. Need an appropriate quaff to wash it all down? Betcha didn't know Turtle Crossing boasts the largest tequila selection in the Hamptons. There's a Kid's Menu for little BBQ fans and on Sundays, Turtle Crossing now features a popular new brunch with appealing southwest choices like huevos rancheros and one-eyed BBQ ropa vieja. Turtle Crossing also provides full service catering and their entire menu is available for take-out order. For information, Turtle Crossing at 631-324-7166 or WordHampton PR 631-329-0050.

It's Our Garden WITH ELIZABETH AND CROW MILLER

Our research has pegged kelp meal and liquid extracts as uniquely valuable in organic growing because kelp provides a complete assortment of all the biologically active materials plus chelating substances. Kelp has plant hormones, auxins and gibberellins to help stimulate and regulate plant growth. Specifically, it provides cytokinins which support and sustain photosynthesis. This keeps up the flow of carbohydrate supplies for use in the nitrogen fixing process that is so vital to healthy, productive soil. Its soil-conditioning substances also promote the crumb structure so desirable in soils and enhance the soil environment for beneficial organisms. Kelp meal or liquid sprays also help plants resist damage from disease, insects or environmental stress.

With so much going for it, it's easy to see why a research organization like Spring Meadow would spend a lot of time and money on the study of kelp meal and liquid foliar sprays and be enthusiastic about its use.

The bottom line on kelp meal or spray, is that it is the most complete source of trace minerals on the face of the earth. Almost every organic grower will benefit from using kelp. It's totally safe and provides some sixty trace elements that plants need in very small quantities. Kelp meal contains growth-promoting hormones, doesn't leach and has a slow release cycle. It's also a great source for vitamins and beneficial enzymes.

The type of kelp frequently used as a soil conditioner comes from Norway and Iceland. It thrives there under some rather unusual environmental factors.

Warm Gulf stream water and arctic temperatures combine and cause this brown seaweed to grow slowly. The slow growth rate also enables kelp to absorb all the micronutrients the ocean has to offer. All plants have the same growth-promoting hormones as kelp, but northern, cold water kelps have them in higher concentrations because of their unique habitat.

Kelp has another important benefit, it's a renewable organic fertilizer. Properly harvested, kelp is like a haycrop: "Just clip it without destroying the bed. It's continually growing."

While kelp by itself is not a total soil food, it is part of the overall picture of conditioning soil. For the organic grower, kelp can be a very important addition.

Kelp's broad range of trace minerals act as conditioners by stimulating the soil's microbes. Chemical fertilizers don't have these trace minerals and they lack the dormant and active bacteria spores present in kelp meals. These organisms encourage the enzyme process necessary for healthy soil and aid the aeration process. This is why a biological fertilizer with a nitrogen — phosphorous — potassium (N—P—K) of 3—3—3 can outperform a chemical product with a 10—10—10 rating. Rule of Thumb with organic N—P—K, plus other nutrients is the number times X 3.

By using kelp and similar biological amendments, organic growers can circumvent the changes in soil life that chemical agents cause. With chemicals the microorganisms become nitrogen consumers instead of fixers. Right now the air I'm holding in my hands contains more nitrogen than any grower could afford to buy. And it's free. What the organic grower needs to understand is how the cycle works in nature and how to take advantage of it. Bio-fertilizers and conditioners help that cycle function.

There are no magical formulas for improving soil. A good general recipe for kelp meal is to apply one pound of kelp meal per 100—square feet. Be sure to keep up with a soil—testing regimen (Agri—Balance 516/725—5725); using kelp as a soil supplement can have an effect on your soil for several years down the road. You only want to boost your soil as much as is necessary to get the best return on your conditioning investment.

If you live near the sea, you can harvest your own seaweed. If you do, make sure that the seaweed has been well rinsed or you will be negating many of its benefits by salting your soil. Add it to your compost, this will allow you to tap into all the benefits of ocean minerals.

A few words of caution when it comes to adding minerals to your soil. There are some so called organic experts who will tell you to use rock dusts to build up minerals in soil. First, it takes much longer than using kelp meal, and many of these so-called wonder rock dusts contain lead and other heavy metals that will make your soil toxic. So if you are going to use rock dust as a mineral booster, check its analysis and make sure there is no lead or other heavy metals. Who in their right mind would put lead in their soil?

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

Twenty-three years ago, I made the mistake of holding a May Day (May 1st) party. Newly married, it seemed like a good idea to invite friends over, kind of a rite of Spring. My father yelled at me, "What are you, some kind of a communist?!" I didn't realize that May Day was a USSR celebration and it was a big to-do; they had a parade honoring Stalin on that day. Whoops.

Well, I learned recently that it is also an ancient pagan ritual, probably originating in the spring fertility festivals of India and Egypt. In Ireland, ancient Celts would celebrate this day as the union between the "Divine Masculine" and the "Divine Feminine" forms to bring forth the third form, consciousness. Big whoops! Can you imagine if my father had known that, too? Not only would I have been a communist, but a heathen pagan to boot! No more May Day parties, you can be sure of that!

Here it is, twenty-three years later, and I am writing this on May Day. But I think I'll just celebrate the fact that it is a nice Spring day. Actually, this afternoon some of our farmers and fishermen go before the Suffolk County Legislature for our appointments to the Long Island Market Agency. Finally, the agency gets formalized and we can begin working to determine if the notion of a regional market can work for Long Island.

Some other news of interest for our readers: Susan Henry has accepted an appointment as the 12th Ronald P. Lynch Dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University. Her term will begin this summer. Susan is currently Dean of the Mellon College of Science at Carnegie Mellon University. She received her Ph.D. in Genetics from the University of California and a BS in Zoology from the University of Maryland at College Park. Congratulations to Susan for this prestigious accomplishment and good luck in her new position. Also, good luck to Daryl Lund, who Susan replaces as Dean. Daryl will continue on as faculty at Cornell.

Dayton-Halstead Comes To Sag Harbor

Dayton-Halstead Real Estate, one of the best known real estate brokerage firms on the East End of Long Island has announced that it will open a new office in the Village of Sag Harbor. Ginger English, a well-known real estate professional in the Hamptons and former president of the Hamptons & North Fork Realtors Association, will head the new office.

The new full service brokerage office is expected to open on Main Street in the Village of Sag Harbor on June 1, 2000. It will open with ten agents who will cover the entire East End, but specialize in Sag Harbor Village, the surrounding waterfront, North Sea, North Haven and Noyack. The staff will handle residential sales and rentals, commercial sales and leasing and vacant land for development, and will work closely with the firm's East Hampton and Bridgehampton offices as well as with The Halstead Property Company in Manhattan.

"Sag Harbor is a natural expansion location for us," said Diane Saatchi, managing partner of Dayton-Halstead. "It gives us more geographic depth in our coverage of the Hamptons market, and this will make a huge difference in convenience to our customers. And Ginger English is one of the top professionals in the region. We're absolutely delighted to have her running our Sag Harbor office."

Ginger English, a twenty year veteran of waterfront, second home and resort community real estate, has been a well regarded and highly visible presence in Hamptons real estate in recent years. In 1999 she was President of the Hamptons and North Fork realtors Association, in 1998 she was that organization's Vice President, and in 1997 she was named by that organization Associate of The Year. She is currently Chair of the organization's finance and program committees. She lives in North Haven with her two Norwich Terriers, where she is renovating an historic house.

Dayton-Halstead has been the best firm out here for

Need More Space? Think Outdoor Storage

Have you ever wondered where you're going to securely store all of your gardening equipment, camping gear, bicycles, or your new, shiny lawn mower? Or that firewood that was left out in the rain again.

Outdoor storage structures help to organize and create valuable space that can enhance any outdoor living area. A storage building and a unit to store trash cans and firewood are just two great ideas. Built of pressure-treated Southern Pine, outdoor storage structures will provide long-lasting durability and protection.

A variety of design options are available for a typical 8x10-foot storage building. A ramp is handy for moving a wheelbarrow or a riding mower in or out of the building. There are choices for exterior siding as well, such as painting or staining the siding to match the rest of the house. Inside, storage cabinets and shelves can be easily attached to the 2x4 stud walls of the building.

Now that you have all of your prized outdoor possessions securely stored away, what do you do with that firewood and those trash cans? A great solution is the trash can/firewood storage unit. This unit has an attractive design that conceals your trash cans and provides dry storage for your firewood. And because of its compact design, you can locate it on the edge of the patio, alongside the storage building, or next to the fence.

The Southern Pine Council (SPC) offers detailed project plans on how to build both the storage building and trash can/firewood storage unit. The illustrated plans include step-by-step instructions and provides a list of tools and materials required.

During construction, be sure to use galvanized or stainless steel fasteners and hardware. When construction is complete, apply a water repellent sealer for added protection and to enhance appearance. Treated Southern Pine can be painted or stained just like untreated wood.

SPC offers a free brochure listing these and other outdoor project plans. For a free copy, contact the Southern Pine Council at Box 641700, Kenner, LA 70064, or visit: www.southernpine.com.

the last five years," said Ms. English, "and I'm delighted to be joining the team. Sag Harbor is one of the most exciting and fast moving markets on the East End, and Dayton-Halstead's blend of technological support and intimate knowledge of the market can make all the difference or a buyer or seller."

Dayton-Halstead's East Hampton office is located at 78 Main Street, East Hampton, NY (631) 324-6900; its Bridgehampton office is at 2450 Main Street, (631) 537-6900. The Sag Harbor office will open in June, but their phone lines are open at 631-725-6900. Dayton-Halstead is a partner of The Halstead Property Company, one of the largest residential real estate firms in Manhattan with offices on the Upper East End, the Upper West Side, Greenwich Village and SoHo, the Halstead Property Company can be reached at (212)734-0010.

Runaway Spotted At Gurney's International Spa

This is the story that every woman should have the opportunity to write. The week she took a vacation from her everyday world. It's not as mysterious as it sounds, though I must admit it did turn into something magical and even spiritual.

I didn't realize how quickly the time had flown by, but for the last two years I took on the task (happily) of adding on to my life a somewhat in need of a serious make-over house, a boyfriend with his two six foot teenage boys, add my two six foot sons, a senile sheepdog, my beautiful Dane, a brand new (in need of house training) Wheaten puppy, four totally disagreeable cats... well, you get the picture. It really seemed to be a great idea. I'm sure building the Suez Canal seemed like a great idea at the time at the time, but once you get into it, you question your sanity.

We are talking about a generation that produced women who felt they could become a vice president, marry and produce perfect kids, run the PTA, wear a size five Calvin Klein and fry up the bacon right in the pan. Because we were women...W...O...M...E...N! I remember humming that commercial jingle as I was painting the living room, faxing my assistant Denise at the office (about the next charity event, my photo pages, designing a cover, talking to one of my advertisers), explaining to the boys that the basement could be used for a party but 200 kids were too many, and yes, we would be home for it...all with homemade spaghetti sauce boiling over. I knew I needed a break when I found myself talking seriously to my housekeeper about why certain ferns need fertilizer... she doesn't speak English. I decided to do something about it. I just sat down one day and said, "Guys, it is my turn. There is food in the fridge and clean towels in the bathroom. I am running away. Oh, okay I will be coming back. I'm heading to the Spa at Gurney's Inn in Montauk. To reclaim me, body threw my overstuffed suitcase, (you never know if you may need a pair of drop dead spike heels) into my sports. It was raining and I put the Stevie Ray Vaughn CD into the CD player. The ride to Gurney's Inn is truly beautiful, with its long stretches of road, winding around the dunes and scrub oak trees. It gave me an opportunity to unwind and get ready for my getaway.

I spoke to Ingrid Lemme, the Director of Public Relations by phone and asked her advice on how to do this up-coming week. She is a ball of fire a natural Teutonic beauty that loves her job at Gurney's Inn and Spa. She is the one who put me in touch with a very special woman named Susan Yunker, R.N. Ingrid knew I wouldn't be an easy case, so to speak. I'm used to being in charge and take my career and family very seriously. Ms. Yunker had her work cut out for her. Susan had a schedule already laid out for me, a daily plan that started with a morning beach walk, aquatic exercises, Spa Plan lunches, facials, yoga, herbal and seaweed wraps and ending with a spa plan dinner. I sat with Susan in her office as she explained all the things I would be doing and all the things that were going to be done to me. We took a tour of the Spa and I was truly amazed at how well run it was, the décor and fragrances that permeated the different sections was hypnotic and so relaxing. The staff of women was and soul. I'll be gone for one full week." I had to repeat where I would be several times including on the day I was leaving for Gurney's. The only heartbeats in the house that were genuinely concerned about my impending absence were Dan and Rudi, my great dane. Why is it that all of a sudden Dan couldn't find two socks that matched and Rudi was spitting up dandelions? Undaunted, Monday morning at 7:30 a.m., I always in sight and yet you never felt crowded and if you needed a towel, it would appear. There were personal lockers for anyone using the Spa facilities and each day a fresh, fuzzy terrycloth robe, slippers and towels would be there for you. Soft haunting music lay in the air, as did a warm humidity that kept you in a state of relaxation. Nothing seemed more important to the staff than giving complete attention to you and your needs. This alone would have been enough for me, but that was only the beginning.

The beach walks with Susan each day set the tone for the planned schedule. She has the spirit of the ocean and the sky, she reminded me of all the natural beauty that is around us and how nature is where we should turn to when the pressure of every day life becomes a burden to us. Her medical knowledge of how to approach revitalizing your body was so helpful. I felt very comfortable knowing my Spa Plan was custom designed specifically for me after a long consultation with her.

When I joined the aquatic exercise in the incredible, huge, warm salt-water pool, I never thought I would have so much fun, but Miriam Braunsweiz was so thorough with her instructions and eagle eye, you had to give in. Her experience in this field allowed you to get a real workout without really minding it. It was now time for lunch and what is better than eating in front of the ocean in a world class restaurant whose spa menus rivals their regular one? After a leisurely lunch there was a brush and tone massage or a seaweed wrap. Betsy and Debbie have hands that seem to be most at home taking the stress out of your bodies. Their easy manner and ability to make you feel totally at ease with your (naked) body was amazing. Betsy handled the Seaweed Body Wrap and Brush and Tone.

Seaweed Body Wrap – Pure liquefied seaweed containing its cell fluid with all the beneficial biotrace elements is used in this treatment. The pre-warmed liquid is smoothed on the skin; the body is loosely wrapped while heat lamps create comfortable warmth. The seaweed liquid with all its nourishing ingredients penetrates through the derm, promoting natural skin elasticity and velvety softness.

As if my body wasn't having the time of its life.

A heavenly Swiss shower followed these procedures. Your body is sprayed with fresh water from overhead and side jet needle valves. The therapist varies the velocity of the spray and water temperatures from hot to cold which has a tingling, invigorating effect and is beneficial to the skin tone and the whole system.

How about a facial? Clair Wagner worked magic with soothing herbal mixtures and gentle steam mists that were directed at my face. I just had to buy the products she used on my face. It was remarkable the difference can be when a professional

Gurney's staff

Cat, after Gurney's

Brush and Tone – Dry brushing is the best cleansing one can give the skin. It removes dead skin particles, increases the circulation and brings the blood to the body surface. After a gentle brushing, seaweed body milk is applied to the skin in soft, rhythmic movements. The lotion contains a high percentage of seaweed cell liquid, which nourishes and tones the skin. This treatment leaves the skin clean, soft and smooth. The staff's ability to keep you happy, uninhibited and relaxed comes from their many years of experience.

takes over. I couldn't forget the toes, I was in too deep. I now wanted the whole works! Not only did my toes sparkle; the foot rub could have made me fall asleep. Hearing the ocean waves crashing while all of this is going on is wonderful. Thanks, Dawn!

POLICE BLOTTER

Last week the New Moon Café in East Quogue was burglarized, and the thief left a rather disgusting calling card, a sample of feces on a napkin on the cash register. Two days later, the owner found a man inside his establishment in the middle of the night. The man, described as heavy-set and wearing camouflage, was crouching behind the bar. The owner chased him out, but not before striking him with his belt buckle. It is not certain what the man was doing behind the bar.

In Quogue, a resident reported that an unknown person stole a rocking chair and some plants from his front porch. The person then defecated on the porch. Police have no suspects on the defecating deviant.

At the Southampton 7-Eleven, police saw someone approaching the dumpster and told said person to step away from the dumpster, over the patrol car's public address system. The sixteen year-old Southampton boy allegedly continued to approach the dumpster and urinate on the sidewalk. The boy was arrested for disorderly conduct and held on $50 bail.

A Sagaponack resident reported that someone stole a green cushion off of his lounge chair. Apparently the thief felt a bit bolder later on, returning five days later and took the rest of the chair.

A student at Southampton College was riding his bicycle along the railroad tracks in Shinnecock Hills, when someone opened fire on him. According to the moving target, he dove off of his bicycle and saw three white men standing on the deck of a nearby home, one of which was pointing a "long gun" at him. Police are still looking into the matter.

A Wainscott man was driving down Buckskill Road when he saw some teenager cruising along on a tractor. He stopped to speak to the youths, who then fled on foot. Police later ascertained that the tractor belongs to the tennis club.

A man was returning to his Northwest home on North Hollow Road, and noticed three holes where his three large bushes had once stood. The shrubbery stealer absconded with $75 worth of bushes.

In East Hampton, a Middle Lane resident spotted a man making off in his Dodge pickup with three flats of vinca from his front lawn. Police soon caught up with Victor M. Parra of East Hampton on Spring Close Highway, and arrested and charged him with petit larceny. He later posted $100 bail at his arraignment.

A Water Mill resident reported the theft of building supplies from his Paumanok Road building site. Among the missing materials were two aluminum pre-hung glass doors, 4,000 cedar shingles and fifty planks. Police have no suspects and the matter is still under investigation.

Dan's LETTERS

WORTHLESS SURVEYS

Dear Dan,

Has New York City gone to the dogs? Can you believe New York City Consumer Affairs Commissioner Ms. Jane Hoffman recently released a study (paid for at taxpayers expense) dealing with the cost of pet food! Sadly, she has decided to follow in the footsteps of her predecessor former Consumer Affairs commissioner Jules Polonetsky who gave us such classic hits as the price of roses on Valentines Day, admission ticket to a movie theater, and the cost of a turkey before Thanksgiving, etc., etc.

Is it any wonder we Long Island residents shed no tears when the commuter tax was repealed? Monies spent on these surveys could be better spent on keeping public libraries open longer hours or increasing funding for Senior Citizens Meals on Wheels programs. Consumers are also hard working taxpayers that are tired of reading about public financed projects being completed over budget or many months and even years behind schedule. How about investigating the cost effectiveness of programs managed by either the School Construction Authority or board of Education? Are other city agencies providing proper oversight over their procurements and capital projects? Perhaps real cost savings could be identified under these types of meaningful reviews.

There will be a new Mayor on or before January 1, 2002. Maybe the current Consumer Affairs Commissioner should update her resume rather than producing another worthless survey at taxpayer expense.

Larry Penner
Great Neck

Link in 1812. There are five basic movements: long gliding strokes; kneading of individual muscles; a percussive tapping movement that is designed to stimulate the nervous system; a rolling movement of the fingers; and vibration of the body. Natural, enriched, special formula massage oil beneficial to the skin is used to aid smoothness and gliding of strokes. It is suggested to "warm-up" before this massage by a Roman bath, sauna or steam bath, or a hot shower.

Jonathan Ebin, who knows the technique of Shiatsu very well, is out of New York and has the knowledge and years of experience to practice this ancient art of Shiatsu. His clientele is a who's who from Wall Street to the entertainment world. Shiatsu, which is one of the traditional Japanese massage techniques, was developed from the ancient Chinese acupressure, which is based on acupuncture. Treatments originating in the Far East are generally always considering the energy pathways of the body referred to as meridians, mainly the six passive and six active chief groups relating to particular organs and interactive energy flow. Shiatsu uses hand manipulation to exert gentle to strong, deep pressure or "trigger" points along the meridians to stimulate, calm and/or harmonize the functions of the body and mind, promoting and resulting relaxation and reduction of stress. Shiatsu balances the body's energy flow and eliminates possible existing energy blockages by manipulation of the pressure points along the meridians.

At the end of each day, I would go into the Roman Bath, which I feel every home should have (right up there with their microwave). Hot steaming bubbling mineral water surrounded by a marble floor, walls and ceiling... add a waterfall and all you wind up having the strength for is sighing. This is truly a vacation that has to be repeated. To think people travel from all over the country to come to Gurney's Inn Resort, Spa and Conference Center tells me that this is the place to be. A plus for us, Gurney's is right in our own back yard. Ladies, and yes there are the same services for men, treat yourselves this time, there are Spa Plans for a day, two or three days...it really can be custom designed for your needs and budgets are workable.

When I arrived home beaming with the new "me," I was greeted with, "Oh, Mom, we ran out of dog food. Hey you look good." Oh well, I didn't do this for them, I really did it for me. You should too.

For information and brochures call Gurney's Inn Resort, Spa and Conference Center, Montauk, Long Island 631-668-2345.

Happy Mother's Day 2000

M.....is for the million things she gave me,
O .....means only that she's growing old,
T .....is for the tears she shed to save me,
H .....is for her heart of purest gold,
E .....is for her eyes, with love light shining,
R .....means right, and right she'll always be.

Put them all together, they spell "MOTHER",
A word that means the world to me.
